WAR CRISIS POISON PEN BARED IN BRITAIN

Nazi Planes Bomb Five English Ships

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The air ministry announced that German warplanes attacked five merchant ships off the British Isles today, while unidentified planes also flew over the Firths of Forth and Tay in Scotland. One of the vessels attacked, it was reported, was machine-gunned and ten men aboard were hurt. This vessel was relieving a lightship off the east coast of Scotland.

Another ship was attacked in the same region and two more further south. A fifth ship, location of which was not given, was reported damaged by bombs from a German Heinkel. The attacks were made under cover of mists.

British aviators failed to contact the enemy due to the poor visibility.

POISON PENMAN IN WAR OFFICE

By NEWELL ROGERS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 9—Public controversy over dismissal of War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha reached a high pitch today with injection of the racial angle.

Simultaneously with appearance of uncredited newspaper advertisements demanding Hore-Belisha's reappointment, the war office announced it was investigating widespraed circulation of letters written on official war office note paper attacking the dismissed secretary because of his Jewish faith.

Hore-Belisha called upon King George at Buckingham Palace shortly after noon and surrendered his seals of office.

The letters, unsigned and presumably untraceable beyond the fact they were written on the richly embossed official stationery of the war office, were received by hundreds of army officers.

SAYS "JEWS IN CONTROL"

Not only did the context attack Hore-Belisha violently, but went even further to allege that "Jews and aliens" are in control of the British army, navy and air force.

Copies of the communication were sent through the regular post, presumably bearing the war office frank. An intensive investigation was begun in an effort to disclose the individual or group responsible for injecting an element into the Hore-Belisha case strangely reminiscent of the famous Dreyfus affair in France.

The letter read:

"Our beloved country is engaged in a costly and unnecessary war which was forced upon our peace-loving countrymen by evil Jewish 'stringpullers' to whom the secretary of war was so closely allied.

"We Englishmen must clear out this evil from our midst.

"This branch of His Majesty's government (the war office), so long efficiently controlled by true Englishmen, is now a hotbed of numerous greasy and crooked aliens.

"This iniquitous business lies at the door of Hore-Belisha and his kind—the rabble of Europe."

Meanwhile public attention was focussed upon the newspaper advertisements, which paid tribute to Hore-Belisha's work as war secretary and concluded:

"We cannot lose Hore-Belisha!
"The war cabinet needs energy,

BRITONS FACE WAR 'BLOOD SACRIFICE'

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 9—In a message heavy with foreboding, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the people of Britain and France today that they must be prepared to sacrifice their "blood and their treasures" if "the forces of right are to prevail in the world."

Addressing a large group of hearers at the Mansion House in his first speech of the New Year, Chamberlain cited President Roosevelt's address to the opening of Congress as proof that French-British determination to rid the world of the menace of German aggression enjoys the sympathy of democracies everywhere.

But, he warned, the present absence of activity on the Western Front is but "a quiet calm before the storm."

"I am not sure that the country realizes what we are facing," he said. "There may be much grimmer experiences than anything we have seen."

In the closing portion of his address, which referred to President Roosevelt's message to Congress, Chamberlain said:

"I humbly agree that if the forces of right are to prevail, we must not hesitate to risk our blood and our treasure to so great an end.

"The President of the United States has declared that only by friendly associations by the seekers of light and the seekers of peace everywhere could the forces of evil be overcome."

Chamberlain bitterly denounced not only Germany, but assailed Soviet Russia for her invasion of Finland and promised the Finns that "our response to the resolution

Prime Minister Chamberlain today declared present European warfare "is merely a preliminary to the main struggle," and asserted the union between France and Britain has become so close "that neither of us can give it up."

In discussing co-operation between the allies, the prime minister predicted:

"It might even develop into something wider and deeper, because there is nothing which could do more to precipitate the start of peaceful reconstruction . . ."

The storm over Hore-Belisha's ouster failed to quiet. The war office revealed that "poison pen" letters, written on official stationery of the war office and attacking Hore-Belisha had been widely circulated.

Even as the prime minister declared England was ready to repel any invader from the air, the air ministry announced German planes had renewed their Warfare against British shipping by attacking five merchant ships.

Italy's interest in the Balkans was reported to be leading to a reshuffling of Italian diplomats in those countries in an effort to help settle their internal disputes.

EX-GOV. AND MRS. JAMES M. CURLEY

Governorship Seen Dever Goal for '40

The campaign for the governorship in 1940 was under way today with Atty. Gen. Paul A. Dever giving definite intimation that he was a candidate.

Only Democrat now holding elective State office, in addressing more than 600 Democrats at the $25-a-plate Jackson Day dinner, virtually announced his candidacy for the post now held by Republican Leverett Saltonstall.

In giving a broad hint of his plans, Dever said his services as attorney-general will end this year, adding:

"I am aware of the non-personal character of this meaningful dinner and it would be improper for me to detail my hopes and plans for the future."

Though three former governors were guests at the head table, hope of Democratic harmony was jarred more than a little bit when former Lieut. Gov. Francis E. Kelly inferentially charged that Dever was in a plot that prevented him from speaking. He made remarks following the banquet. He also took this parting shot at the Dever candidacy:

"The Jackson Day Democratic harmony dinner is not a suitable place for anyone, directly or indirectly, to announce his candidacy."

KELLY SEES PLOT

It had been announced prior to the dinner that Kelly would not be permitted to speak. The reason was that the three ex-Governors, with

FISH MEN TRY OUT NEW FORK

Agreeing to "try" unloading without using the customary three-tine fork, now banned, more than 200 fish handlers returned to work at Boston Fish Pier today—but several hours later it was announced that unloading of the fish had been slowed down about 30 per cent.

Today the fish handlers were using three methods of unloading. Members of one group were trying the new single-tine fork ordered by city health officials in co-operation with federal authorities.

Other groups were using baskets, while still others were using platforms with chutes.

41 SHIPS ARRIVE

During the dispute over banning of the three-tined forks the fish handlers had claimed the use of single-tined forks would slow up unloading 60 per cent, while health

FINNS SET TRAP FOR MORE REDS

By PETER de HEMMER GUDME
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HELSINKI, Jan. 9—Finland's canny warriors spun a military spider's web around still another Russian division along the eastern frontier today, laying groundwork for what may prove a third mass "annihilation" of bewildered Red army troops.

Reports from the battle front stated that a third Russian division already is "sitting in a trap" and that Finnish authorities expect it to be cut to pieces at "any moment."

These optimistic reports brought new jubilation to Helsinki following word that the Red Army's 44th division had suffered the same bloody fate as that handed out nearly two weeks ago to the Soviet 163rd division by Finland's hardy ski troops.

If the new victory is attained on schedule, it will mean that the Finns will have won three major battles with almost clock-like precision.

The Russians caught in the new trap were said to number 20,000 men, situated northeast of Salla.

So. End Fire Rages All Night--4 Alarms

One fireman was knocked unconscious when struck by a section of flaming roof, two companions were cut and scores of others frequently endangered, as fire raged all night at historic Paine Memorial Building, South End.

Although its sturdy brick walls held, saving an adjacent hotel, church and warehouse, the building and its dozen halls were totally destroyed

Four alarms were sounded for the blaze, which caused $75,000 damage, according to Deputy Fire Chief William F. Quigley. Furnishings, valuable records of five union organizations and social groups were wiped out.

While many fire fighters were made ill by the heavy smoke or suffered from exposure, three required medical treatment. Louis Farrar, 34, of Engine 26, was hit by a huge piece of the roof as it hurtled 125 feet to the street.

At City Hospital he was placed on the danger list with severe back injuries, head bruises and frostbite. Lieut. Chester Melanson of Ladder 3 and John T. Savage of Ladder 12 were treated for cuts.

Large crowds of spectators lined the Castle sq. section and Chandler st. for hours to watch firemen battle the blaze.

So great was the danger from falling slate and ice at the front of the structure, in Appleton st., that police roped off the area.

Ten lines, including one from a water tower, attacked the fire from the rear, another tower and high pressure lines hurled water at the front, while dozens more were directed on the flames from the roof of Calvary Temple, separated by only a narrow alley from the fire.

The fire was discovered about 10:30 o'clock last night by a passing motorist, who saw flames bursting from the roof. At daylight today firemen were still pouring water on the stubborn blaze, and the walls, fire trucks and ladders were draped with icicles.

Among the labor groups now forced to seek new quarters due to the fire are the Painters' and Paperhangers' Brotherhood, sheet metal workers, plasterers, bridge and structural and ornamental ironworkers.

LOWTHER GOT HIS JULIET, SO COAST ROMEO TRIES, TOO

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9 (AP)—John B. Adams, a Romeo with a court order intended to restrain his prospective mother-in-law from blocking his romance, vowed today he would marry his Juliet if he had to appeal to the Supreme Court.

Adams, 32 - year - old collection agency executive, asserted in seeking a habeas corpus writ that his intended bride, Isabel Deshler, 24, was kept from him against her will by her mother, Mrs. Louise Deshler.

Superior Judge Lyle T. Jacks decided the superior court should determine if Cupid were being illegally thwarted, so he ordered Mrs. Deshler to bring her daughter before him Friday for a hearing.

"Isabel would marry me in a minute if she could get her mother's consent," said Adams. "And I'm going to marry her if I have to go to the Supreme Court to do it."

He said he had pounded on the Deshler door and telephoned incessantly since Thursday, but his only luck was the statement from Isabel's sister, Louise, that his fiancee had left town.

COPIES LOWTHER

"I don't believe it," said Adams.

He added his idea for the court action came from the similar case in New York involving George Lowther and the former Eileen Herrick. They were married last week.

The Deshler side of the dispute was a bit clouded. Mrs. Deshler answered the door when interviews were sought, and called Louise. Louise summoned brother William, who said he knew nothing of the matter except that Isabel was not home.

Nobody called Isabel and neither did she appear.

Adams said that three weeks ago he and Isabel tried to elope, but she stopped to telephone her mother, who became hysterical, so they postponed the event 24 hours.

HIS HEART ACHES

When he telephoned the next night, Adams related, Mrs. Deshler told him her daughter had changed her mind, and since then he has had an aching heart and no fiancee.

He declared Isabel was his stenographer until Mrs. Deshler found about their engagement, after which the young woman quit.

"I've been married and divorced—that was in 1936 after a one-year try, and maybe that's why Mrs. Deshler doesn't like me," said Adams.

Process servers reported their first attempts to serve Mrs. Deshler with papers in the court action were fruitless because of a slammed front door, but they hoped for better success today.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE

Boy, 6, 'Jilts' Shirley Temple

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Shirley Temple has been "jilted."

The swain who threw over the 10-year-old film star was the second lead in her latest picture, "The Bluebird" — six-year-old Johnny Russell.

Johnny said he always would regard Shirley as "the nicest little girl I ever met," but that he could never marry her. It wasn't the difference in their ages. He thought he could outgrow that.

"The reason I cannot marry her is that people might think I was marrying her for her money," he explained gravely. "That is all."

Jury Resumes Dighton Probe

With two women and six men witnesses summoned, the federal grand jury today resumed its probe of the Dighton dog track and alleged income tax evasions by track officials.

Included among the witnesses today was Miss Alice Murphy of Gallivan blvd., Dorchester, track stockholder and teacher in the Boston schools, and Mrs. Margaret Ravenscroft of Medford, a sister of James J. Egan, one of the track operators.

Men witnesses waiting to testify were Arthur and Charles McQuiston of Waltham, formerly employed at the track as "listener ins".

Cambridge Baby Toddles Into Traffic

Hearts of onlookers skipped a beat today as they watched a bright-eyed girl climb out of her carriage at Green and Pleasant sts., Cambridge, and toddle through heavy traffic.

Like a babe in a motorized woods, she walked straight ahead with innocent gayety, not dodging once as cars honked and slid on icy streets to a stop with a screeching of brakes.

Several spectators shouted, but one man, unidentified, sped out into the street, rescued the infant, then took her to the police station.

"She's lucky to be alive," the man told police.

Returning to the Central sq. area, officers found the carriage parked on the sidewalk near the Pleasant-Green intersection.

After numerous inquiries failed to find the infant's mother or guardian, police took the carriage to the station where, free from traffic hazards, the baby, about two and a half years old, began pushing it back and forth.

Power of Attorney Cited in Will Fight

Sweeping powers of attorney were delegated to Frank M. Archer, Jr., under the will of the late Mrs. Emma Young of Arlington, it was testified today in Middlesex probate court at the contest of Mrs. Young's will, disposing of an estate approximating $400,000.

The will, which named Archer as executor and sole heir beyond several trust funds, mentioned that Mrs. Young had no next of kin and no heirs-at-law.

It is being contested, however, by Paul C. Pendleton, an office clerk of Hartford, Ct., who claims he is a grand-nephew of the deceased.

Yesterday, the opening session of the contest, Atty. George F. McKeleget, counsel for Archer, filed a motion to strike out the appearance of Pendleton on the ground that he is not a heir-at-law.

Judge John C. Leggat denied the motion, however.

The greater part of today's session was given over to testimony by Atty. Eugene J. Harrigan, formerly connected with the office of Timothy F. Callahan, but now general sales manager for the Boston business firm of which Archer is the head.

According to Harrigan's testimony, the will and the trust funds were drawn on the same day, Dec. 18, 1927, with the trust funds including several to public institutions.

WINTHROP SEEKS TO SAVE RAIL LINE

Solution of Winthrop's Narrow Gauge transportation problem today became the task of a new civic committee of seven members —to be appointed immediately—as the town again voted down proposed Boston Elevated control of their only transit link with Boston.

After a spirited town meeting, lasting well past midnight, the plan to have the El take over the Winthrop branch of the Narrow Gauge stood definitely rejected by a vote of 117 to 104.

It was the second time in four months that Winthrop had turned down the Boston Elevated plan, a plan sponsored by Narrow Gauge bondholders.

Although a throng of citizens, estimated at about 1500 persons, overflowed the Winthrop Junior High School auditorium for the meeting, seventy town meeting members failed to answer the roll call to vote.

The vote, which surprised many, came as only 18 days remained before the scheduled shutdown of the Narrow Gauge.

It came despite Gov. Saltonstall's statement that there was no use in appealing to the Supreme Court the decision of the federal district court authorizing the bondholders of the road to abandon service.

WILL SEEK SOLUTIONS

The town meeting came to its decision to name a committee to study the problem after speakers had argued the pros and cons of the transportation situation for nearly five hours.

The committee is to make a survey of all possible solutions and report back to the next town meeting at a date to be fixed. This next town meeting, it was said, probably will be held next Monday night.

Rejection of the Boston Elevated plan came after many speakers had declared that bondholders were "just bluffing," in an effort to benefit to the tune of $250,000 by the sale of the line to the Boston Elevated.

This sum would be paid for rights and rolling stock even if the Elevated later decided to establish the system as a bus line.

Believe Truck Strike Averted

Settlement of the differences which nearly precipitated a truck strike in Greater Boston will be effected within 48 hours, it was reliably learned today.

Before union men and employers resumed their conferences with the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, it was learned both sides were prepared to compromise.

Union men will receive an increase less than $1 a week which they demanded, it was said.

She watched them cart out 10 bundles of bed spreads and saw them again scale the fence.

Then Mrs. Phipps screamed—and what a scream it was, neighbors said later.

The robbers were so terrified they dropped their loot and fled.

'DOLL GIRL' PARENTS AT TRIAL

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Jan. 9—A stolid, 200-lb. suspended state police corporal, charged with riddling the body of Joan Stevens, 14-year-old "doll girl" with eight bullets because she had a toy pistol, learned today the state would demand a second degree murder conviction.

Benjamin Franklin, 33, is accused of the brutal slaying of Joan on the night of last June 5 as the two sat with Private Edward Swatji in an automobile on a lonely road in Joan's home town of nearby Nesquehoning.

The trooper told a coroner's jury he and Swatji were questioning the girl about a bank robbery plot which she said she knew about. He fired in self defense, he said, because the girl pulled a gun and shouted she'd "blow your brains out." The girl's pistol proved to be a toy.

More than 40 witnesses, 20 for the Commonwealth and 24 for the defense, were subpoenaed for the trial but Dist. Atty. Albert Heimbach, of Carbon County, said difficulty in selecting a jury might delay testimony until tomorrow.

Chief Defense Counsel Ben Branch did not disclose whether he would call Joan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Stevens, but both announced they would take the stand if needed.

"I'd like to see him get the same as my little girl got," the father, a miner, told reporters.

Franklin, now suspended from the state police force, sought unsuccessfully to have the trial transferred to another county, claiming prejudice existed against him in Carbon county. Presiding Judge Samuel S. Shull, of adjoining Monroe county, will preside in place of James C. McCready, however. McCready withdrew because he formerly was attorney for the "Joan Stevens citizens defense committee," which interested itself in the case.

So. End School Looted of Radio

The second school within a week was raided during the night, apparently by juvenile thieves, police reported today.

After surveying the damage done by the ransacking of the Abraham Lincoln grammar and junior high school, South End, police said:

"Last week, thieves broke into a school and tore down the flags. It looks like kids are trying to go through school in one night instead of waiting eight years to pass a course that will help them to learn that crime does not pay."

Twelve rooms were ransacked at the Abraham Lincoln school, and the janitor's radio was stolen, William M. Murphy, custodian, told officers.

Elopement Wins Wife Divorce

Her husband ran off to California with "the other woman," and once wealthy Mrs. Jennie Swartz of Nightingale st., Dorchester, now has to peddle from door to door to support herself, she told Judge John V. Mahoney in probate court today, where she was granted a divorce.

Samuel Swartz was a well-known Woburn shoe manufacturer, but through his love for a married woman named "Julia" he got into bad habits, lost his business and real estate and left her to support herself, Mrs. Swartz testified.

In 1937, she said, after "Julia's" husband had asked police to find his wife and Swartz, the woman came to her and told her she loved the shoe man.

"I told her to go back to her husband," Mrs. Swartz testified.

Mrs. Bessie Greenberg of Revere, sister to Mrs. Swartz, testified she talked with the erring husband and sought to make peace. He told her he loved only Julia, and that he would not go back to his wife, she said.

On one occasion he beat Mrs. Swartz with a chair when she refused to let him into the house, after she learned about the other woman, the sister said.

'SONS OF ST. PATRICK' TAKE BISHOP SPELLMAN TO HEARTS

By JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York was made an honorary member of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick at exercises at the Hotel Astor of New York attended by leaders in the church, in education and public life.

Surrogate James Foley made the presentation of the membership into the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick to Archbishop Spellman. A resolution was read reciting the numerous deeds of accomplishment of the archbishop.

It was revealed in the resolution that it was Archbishop Spellman who carried on the delicate diplomatic negotiations which ended with President Roosevelt naming Myron C. Taylor as the representative of the United States to the Vatican in an effort to help the cause of world peace.

The final important correspondence between the Vatican and the White House was handled by Archbishop Spellman.

Attention was also called to the fact Pope Pius II recently named Archbishop Spellman in charge of all chapalins and Catholic services in the army and navy of the United States. The late Cardinal Hayes had held a similar post during the World War.

WILD RIDE'S END—John Malia, 17, is taken to Brighton court by Officer Lester Snow . . . following 10-mile chase in which one policeman was thrown through a glass door and the fugitive driver is alleged to have attempted to crash into the police car. Malia was held in $2000 bail.

COP BADLY HURT BATTLING SPEEDER

A 17-year-old red-headed Brighton boy was seized today by police after a 10-mile chase, during which one officer was hurled through a plate glass door and another narrowly escaped with his life when the desperate youth allegedly used the car as a battering weapon.

The boy, John Malia of Bennett st., Brighton, was held on five counts for trial Monday when he appeared before Judge Thomas H. Connelly in Brighton district court.

Severely injured at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where 12 stitches were required to close his wounds, was Metropolitan Officer Harold Cook.

POLICE FIRE SHOTS

The race began in Nonantum rd., Brighton, when Patrolmen Cook and Lester Snow tried to stop a car that had no tail light. Zooming at 60 miles an hour, the officers chased the car through Watertown and into Cambridge.

As the chase reached Craigie st., Officer Cook fired three shots.

Suddenly, the pursued car skidded across a sidewalk. Then, police said, the youth backed up the car and, swinging it around, drove straight at the police car.

Patrolman Snow said he pulled over to avert a crash, but the fugitive auto rammed the cruiser, then pulled away.

HURLED THROUGH DOOR

Snow then fired through the glass of the cruiser as the youth sped toward Harvard sq.

At Beacon st. and Massachusetts ave., the pursued auto again skidded and turned over, and the driver sped into a Beacon st., apartment.

Cornered by Cook, the youth hurled the officer through a plate glass door, police said, but Officer Snow captured him at gunpoint.

Young Malia, who is held in $2000, was charged with breaking and entering, driving so as to endanger, using an auto without authority, driving after revocation of license and larceny.

Police said he had stolen the car from the garage of Mrs. Mary Flanagan, Matchett rd., Brighton.

J. D. Merrill, Hub Editor, Dies at 75

John D. Merrill, one of the best-loved deans of Boston newspaperdom, political editor of the Boston Globe and editor of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin, died today in Wyman House of Cambridge Hospital, at the age of 75 years.

Funeral services will be held at noon Thursday at Harvard Memorial Church in the Harvard College yard.

Reporter and editor on the Boston Globe for more than half a century, and connected with the Harvard Alumni Bulletin for 37 of those years, Mr. Merrill had countless close friends among men of note throughout the country.

He was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1889, in which were such men as J. Pierpont Morgan, Philip L. Saltonstall, Richard C. Cabot, Philip S. Sears, James H. Roper and T. Suffern Taylor.

It was said of him that among Harvard men there was scarcely another graduate who knew so many, and his long activity in covering politics gave him a further large acquaintance.

Likewise, his service as financial editor years ago put him in touch with leaders on "The Street," which gave him another large circle of intimates.

Born at Salem, N. H., Dec. 20, 1864, of an old New England family, he attended public schools in Lawrence. After his academic course at Harvard he went through the law school, but through his work for the Globe while in college, particularly in athletics, he turned to newspaper work.

Since then he had covered, in the past four decades, nearly every political convention of note.

Mr. Merrill maintained an apartment in Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge, but much of his spare time was spent at the Harvard Faculty Club. He never married.

Week-ends he usually spent with his only surviving relatives, two nieces, Miss Grace C. Merrill and Mrs. Flora Andrews, both of Lawrence.

officials had claimed the work would not be slowed at all.

With the averting of a threatened strike through agreement of the handlers to "try out" new methods, 41 vessels came into the Fish Pier, carrying a total of 1,200,000 pounds of fish.

Ten were large trawlers, two were schooners and the other 29 were smaller craft.

The handlers went avidly to work, although still asserting they would have to work faster to handle the same amount of fish as previously.

Health officials barred the three-tined forks because multiple punctures, they said, gave bacteria too great an opportunity to enter and spoil fish.

The return to work followed informal meetings during last night and early today.

At these meetings, Sec.-Treas. Patrick J. McHugh of the union informed the men that they had no right to strike under their agreement, which is effective until March 15.

LAWRENCE McLAUGHLIN
Confesses Kidnap

Kidnap Suspect Bail $25,000

Stony-faced and silent, Lawrence E. McLaughlin, 23, of Somerville, was held in $25,000 bail today for the grand jury on a kidnaping charge involving an 8-year-old boy whom he allegedly took to New York over the week-end.

Judge Charles F. Gadsby, in Somerville District Court, found probable cause, McLaughlin waived examination and pleaded not guilty.

Police said they were prepared to make use of a "confession" which McLaughlin allegedly made describing his trip with "Billy" Johnson of Somerville ave., Somerville, to Springfield and New York city.

McLaughlin gave himself up 24 hours after the child returned home.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

VICTORIES LISTED BY CHAMBERLAIN

passed at Geneva (pledging aid to Finland) will be no mere formality."

SILENT ON HORE-BELISHA

The people of Finland, Chamberlain said, "are fighting for the same things we are—for liberty and for justice."

Chamberlain reviewed in detail the war on land and sea and in the air and stated that despite British losses, 11,000,000 tons of British shipping still is on the high seas.

"The inexorable pressure of our sea power is acting on the enemy, and producing ever-increasing difficulties for her," he said.

He said nothing whatever concerning the most controversial issue of the day—the dismissal of Leslie Hore-Belisha as secretary of state for war. Perhaps significantly, however, Chamberlain said that until the war was over, he would not shirk his responsibilities, "no matter how difficult or even disagreeable they maye be."

This portion of his message Chamberlain drove across with greatest emphasis:

"It is becoming increasingly clear that the German government had long planned conquests.

GERMANS RESPONSIBILITY

"Appetite grows with what it feeds upon. German leaders now make no effort to hide their desire to dismember the British empire.

"They would love to treat us as they are treating others conquered by them. But we have no intention of allowing ourselves to be so conquered.

"The German people must realize that all the suffering that will follow is Germany's responsibility.

"They must realize that the Allied demands for a fair and just peace cannot be realized by the promises of Germany's present leaders."

Chamberlain stressed the sacrifices that must be made by the people of England by disclosing that meat would be rationed "very soon." He paid tribute, however, to the unified empire support of Britain's war aims as evidenced by the continued arrival of troops from the farthest corners of the empire.

FLAYS RUSSIA, TOO

"This new year, which will probably be a fateful one in the history of the world, has opened quietly—but it is a quiet calm before the storm," he said.

"Vast numbers of men, armed with the most powerful weapons of destruction that science can devise, are watching one another behind their defenses.

"From time to time we hear the sound of guns, but as yet there has been no general engagement. We do not know how long that will last."

Chamberlain bitterly denounced German treatment of the former Polish population and assailed without restraint Soviet Russia's invasion of Finland.

"Germany used brute force upon the unhappy Polish peoples," he said.

"Today we can see how the Germans are mistreating the poor Poles—starving them and stealing their homes to make room for Germans.

"Now we see little Finland the victim of that power with whom Germany made an unholy alliance.

"Today Finland is fighting against the same kind of aggression that we are."

VICTORIES AT SEA

A total of 228,000 tons of German shipping have been lost by capture, sinking and scuttling, Chamberlain said.

"If we subtract from our losses by enemy action our ordinary marine casualties, our gains by captures from the enemy, by new ships or transfers from foreign flags, we have lost up to date 122,000 tons—less than one per cent of the merchant fleet we possess," he said.

"Every day there is now passing to and fro on the oceans of the world no less than 11,000,000 tons of British shiping.

"The inexorable pressure of our sea power is acting on the enemy and producing ever-increasing difficulties for her.

"It, results are not yet strictly visible. You have only the Christmas orations of German leaders to show that they are ever present in their minds."

Chamberlain reviewed Britain's home defenses and told of the great air raid precautions.

"People are asking: 'Is all this necessary?'" he said.

"I do not consider that the risk of air raids is over or even diminished."

CHILDREN IN PERIL

Chamberlain expressed regrets that many of the children evacuated from London at the outbreak of the war had been brought back to the capital.

"Not only does this add to our problems," he said, "but many of the children had benefited in health by their move to the country . . .

"I am sure that all the country is united in determination to do away with the policy of the German leaders. But I am not sure that the country realizes what we are facing.

DICTATORSHIP? — Testifying before the House naval affairs committee, Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison denied any thought of "dictatorship." He indicated that he may abandon a bill giving the President peacetime power to commandeer ship yards and factories.

youth and drive Hore-Belisha has these qualities. He must come back into the war cabinet.

"Write your member of Parliament at once and demand his reinstatement.

"We must have Hore-Belisha!"

The advertising agency which handled publication of the broadside flatly refused to divulge the identity of its client.

While the public anxiously awaited some explanation of these strange new developments, together with enlightenment as to the circumstances behind Hore-Belisha's fall, the army high command emerged the winner today in a lengthy battle with the air ministry for supreme control of the Royal Air Force in France.

It was learned that an air officer commander-in-chief will soon be appointed in France to take charge of the air force, and that this official will be responsible to Viscount Gort.

MOTHER'S LETTER BEGS BAN ON WAR

Pledging herself to preserve American neutrality by every effort in her power, a Cambridge mother was among scores of others yesterday to join the National Legion of Mothers of America, to save American manhood from foreign wars and for service to their own country.

The mother, Mrs. E. M. LeBlue of 41 Baldwin st., writes:

"I will do everything possible to keep our country out of war. I wrote to Washington to keep strict neutrality. I hope there is some way I can help."

Two of her boys served their country in France in the World War, one later sacrificing his life as a result of that war, and a Bar Harbor Me., mother, Mrs. Edith O'neil writes:

"I am only too glad to join your Legion with such a laudable purpose in view. I am a mother of two World War veterans who served with the A. E. F. in France and later with the first Army of Occupation in Germany.

"One I have recently laid to rest because of that war. The other is somewhere in the New England States—just where I don't know, or his state of health. I also had two sons-in-law in the naval service and a nephew with the A. E. F. And he died shortly after he returned.

AN 1812 SOLDIER

"My paternal grandfather was an 1812 soldier, and I had two uncles in the Civil War. My mother's people had considerable to do in combatting the Indians

"I trust that my name will be acceptable as a member of the Legion."

Enclosing her pledge as a Legion member, Mrs. Pauline E. Treadwell of 277 Belgrade ave., Roslindale, writes:

"I have a son 24 and don't want him to go to war on foreign soil, all in vain, as so many of our boys did in the last war."

And with the thought of her four grown sons uppermost in her heart, Mrs. Lillian McLaughlin of Connecticut ave., Somerville, writes:

"In the interest of my four sons, all of war age, I would like to become a member of the Mothers' Legion."

"Watch Your Kidneys"

CHENEY'S Diuretic Pills With JUNIPER and ASPARAGUS

The kidneys are one of the most important eliminative organs of the body. Their useful function in eliminating waste matter and acids and poisons from the blood stream cannot be over-emphasized. Many ailments are aggravated by poorly functioning kidneys. Some of the symptoms often due to kidney disfunction are: Pain in the back, getting up nights, bladder weakness (too frequent urination), scalding urine, scanty urine, cloudy urine, leg pains and swelling of the ankles, difficulty in urination or strong odor to urine.

Juniper and Asparagus Pills help stimulate the secreting cells or nerves of the kidneys and flush, cleanse and purify the kidneys and bladder, helping them to perform their required duties of eliminating irritating acids and poisonous waste matter. Safe and reliable and often proved an effective remedy. Mother Nature's own diuretics and stimulators. Gentle in action, free from after effects.

Juniper Berries
Nature's aid for Kidney and Bladder ailments. First used by the Indians, later by our forefathers for pains in the back, lumbago, scalding, or too frequent urination; in fact, many kidney disorders.

Asparagus Root
Used with great benefit in connection with Juniper Berries. Everyone knows that Asparagus is very beneficial for the kidneys. It is necessary, however, to use it in a very concentrated form to get best results.

Finnish Trap Prepared For More Red Troops

If they were wiped out with the decisiveness with which the two other divisions were "annihilated," they will bring the number of Russian losses to some 120,000 troops since hostilities began nearly six weeks ago.

REDS TRICKED AGAIN

The 44th Red division was "destroyed" on the Suomussalmi front with a loss unofficially estimated at nearly 20,000 men. The battle represented Finland's second major victory of the war.

Finnish troops, many of them the best ski fighters in the land, closed in on the Russians between Suomussalmi and Raate, climaxing a six-day fight by erasing the entire division.

The tactics used by the Finns were largely similar to the ancient "Cannae' strategy used by the same troops nearly two weeks ago near Lake Kiantajaervi, when the Russians were tricked into advancing too far and too fast, then surrounded and mowed down.

Meanwhile, the Russian offensive on the Karelian front appeared to be slowing down, presumably owing to transport difficulties.

It also was reported that the Russians were suffering from a serious food shortage and that the population of Leningrad was rebelling again.

Finns' Finances Vanish; Nation Needs Credits

HELSINKI, Jan. 9 (AP)—Finland's national income is "sinking rapidly," in the words of Prime Minister Ryti, and she must have foreign credits to finance her defense against Soviet Russia, Ryti's statement, pictured the wartime crippling of Finnish export trade.

"As a peace-loving nation, we previously have paid little attention to the munitions industry," he said.

"As a result, now that we have been attacked, we must procure arms and ammunition on a large scale from abroad. Our exports are sufficient to pay only a part of the expenditure.

"With national income sinking rapidly," the statement went on, "the time has come when foreign credit is essential to us."

It added that Finland would meet any new obligations "as faithfully as we have done up to now."

A Gray Hair Recipe that Is Now Used By Thousands

Here is an easy, economical way to darken and refresh gray, faded, streaked hair. The simple home recipe given below is already being used with marked satisfaction by thousands of men and women to hide all traces of gray hair.

This is the recipe: To a half pint of water add one ounce bay rum; one-fourth ounce glycerine; one box Barbo Compound. Any druggist will put this up for you at small cost, or you can mix it at home. This preparation combed into the hair several times a week as directed, imparts a rich, natural looking color to gray, faded, streaked hair. This color can be maintained, too, for a few cents a week. Being colorless, Barbo cannot stain the scalp. Will not wash out; rub off or affect permanents. Is not sticky or greasy and leaves the hair soft and glossy. Use the economical Barbo recipe, today and see if you do not look ten years younger in ten days.

Unity Defied Mob For Hitler Friendship

By EDWARD GOTTLIEB
International News Service Staff Writer

To Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford, Adolf Hitler's "blonde goddess," the growing British hatred of Nazism and the Fuehrer was a challenge and not an indication that war between Britain and Germany was inevitable.

Wearing a Nazi swastika armband, the girl attended a Left Wing mass meeting in Hyde Park, London's "Union Square." More than 50,000 Britons were in the assemblage and her appearance was the signal for a tremendous anti-Nazi demonstration.

"Go back to Germany where you belong," the crowd shouted.

"Throw her into the Serpentine!"

In a few minutes she was attacked, kicked, and beaten. If it were not for a dozen strong London policemen, the beautiful daughter of Lord Redesdale might have been mortally injured.

It was not long after that event that Unity publicly announced her renunciation of her British citizenship and desire to become a German citizen.

Although her father was recognized in the House of Lords as a Nazi sympathizer, he was saddened by Unity's decision and he spoke to her about it. Lady Redesdale argued too.

ESPIONAGE SUSPECT

"I can only breathe German air," the girl retorted.

Even before the Hyde Park meeting, she had learned something of the surging anti-Nazism in European countries other than England.

In June, 1938, at the very height of the Czech-German crisis, Miss Freeman-Mitford decided she wanted to see what Czechoslovakia was like.

Equipped with important German credentials, she journeyed toward Carlsbad in a car with an English writer, Philip Strankjan; a Czech-Nazi representative; and a 22-year-old Chicago student, William Rueff.

She was detained on a suspicion of espionage and after five hours was permitted to go her way. Her version of the incident was this:

"A policeman, rather insolent, opened my baggage and dropped things on the road. He found a signed photograph of Hitler and broke the frame, and then took us to the police station. I was most furious when they seized Hitler's picture. A woman detective stripped me and even took off my stockings."

FOOD FOR PROPAGANDA

Czech officials explained that all foreign cars were subject to search. They confiscated three cameras, films, a diary and a book of German poems.

The British press attacked the beauteous Nazi-phile, but German newspapers seized upon the incident to prove their allegations of Czech "lawlessness."

Unity rapidly became thoroughly imbued with every creed of Nazism, for in that way only could she expect to remain Chancellor Hitler's "ideal Nordic woman" in the face of other rumored romances which must have reached her from the inner circles of the German regime.

Under the spell of Hitler, she had forgotten that her grandfather, Algernon Bertram Mitford, was elevated to the peerage through the efforts of Disraeli, a Jew and one of the most illustrious statesmen in British history.

Hungarians See Peace in Balkans

BUDAPEST, Jan. 9 (INS)—A "general Balkan reconciliation" was predicted by well-informed Hungarian sources today with the return of Foreign Minister Count Stephen Csaky after a series of important conversations in Rome.

Discussing his talks with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, Csaky said:

"We continue to work for peace, following the lines laid down 10 years ago by Premier Mussolini.

"We hope that our patient and calm efforts will be successful."

Japs Again Bomb China's Lifeline

HONGKONG, Jan. 9 (AP)—New air raids on the Haiphong-Kunming railroad, China's "lifeline" into French Indo-China, were reported today by the Japanese army.

For the second successive day the Mengtsz sector, near the border, was the objective. The Japanese command said railway bridges and tracks were "damaged greatly."

Foreign firms were advised by the railway that service would be suspended temporarily.

Bridges Not a Red, Sec. Perkins Rules

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — Secretary of Labor Perkins today approved an examiner's finding that Harry Bridges, West Coast CIO leader, was neither a member of, nor affiliate with the Communist party, and cancelled a deportation warrant issued against him in 1938.

The examiner was James M. Landis, dean of the Harvard Law School. Landis made his report after a 10 weeks' hearing.

SPRING BRIDE—Marcy Westcott, recently seen in Boston in musical comedy "Too Many Girls," will be bride of George Abbott, producer of the show, in the spring, according to gossip along Broadway.

Jap Cabinet Ready to Resign

TOKYO, Jan. 9 (AP)—Resignation of the cabinet of Premier Gen. Nobuyuki Abe as soon as organization is completed of a new Japanese-dominated central government in China was predicted in pohtical circles today.

The cabinet's failure to achieve any considerable improvement in relations with the United States was regarded as likely to prove the primary cause for the predicted fall. Others were the inability to end the conflict in China and a domestic rice shortage which caused steep price increases.

Formation of the new China regime, to administer Japanese-occupied territories and be headed by Wang Ching-Wei, was approved by the cabinet yesterday. Wang is a former premier of China who has been at odds with the Chungking government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek for the past year.

U. S. MAY BUILD TWO 52,000-TON WARSHIPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (INS)—Rear Admiral Harold R. Stark today told the House naval affairs committee the navy may build two 52,000-ton super-dreadnaughts, largest battleships in the world.

Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations, also told the committee the Navy had rejected for the present, suggestions for "battlewagons" of between 70,000 and 80,000 tons.

He declared, however, that the Navy would continue to study the feasibility of "super-super" battleships and may later recommend them.

Stark pointed out that the two new battleships recommended in President Roosevelt's budget message to Congress would be of 45,000 tons each.

The navy, he explained, may add 7000 tons to these dreadnaughts, bringing their tonnage up to 52,000 tons each. Two new 45,000-ton ships also were authorized last year.

The world's biggest battleship now afloat is 32,100 tons—Great Britain's H. M. S. Hood. Thus, if the 52,000-ton battleships are built, the U. S. navy would have the biggest ships on the seas.

Anti-Lynching Bill Starts House War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—House members from the North and the South reached down into their dictionaries today for words to laud and lambast the anti-lynching bill, a recurring issue in election years.

The debate, bringing the chamber into session an hour early at 11 a. m., was expected to avail nothing more than to put the participants on record for political use.

The measure is certain of House passage, probably tomorrow. It won the right to consideration yesterday, 255 to 114, and will be sent to the Senate by about the same margin.

The Senate, not concerned with the anti-lynching bill just yet, was in recess today, but is expected to give its blessing tomorrow to a sweeping special study of the nation's fiscal affairs.

HOUSE LEADERS COOL

Sen. McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, who blocked Senate approval of the proposition yesterday, was reported to have come to terms with Sen. Harrison, (D), of Mississippi, the author. McNary wanted the study to include national defense costs.

Harrison's proposal would set up a 24-man committee to study both the source of revenue and prospective government spending to determine whether Uncle Sam can get by this year on less money.

House leaders remained cool to the idea, principally because it would interfere with their plans to pass an appropriation bill a week for the next several weeks.

Members in close consultation with Harrison said that if the House pigeon-holed the proposition he would introduce another resolution calling for a 12-man Senate committee study. This would permit the House to go ahead and pass its appropriations bills, while the Senate would hold them up until its investigation was completed.

Latest Ship Sinkings

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The British tanker British Liberty, 8485 tons, sank in the North sea over the week-end and the captain and 199 crewmen are believed lost, it was announced today. It was believed the vessel struck a mine.

Eighteen survivors arrived at a French channel port yesterday.

RAID ALARM IN FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 9 (INS)—Air raid alarms which lasted 45 minutes were sounded in Northwestern France today. No incidents were reported.

Watch your THROAT
after sudden exposures
Gargle Listerine

Sudden temperature changes, like drafts . . . wet feet . . . and fatigue, may lower body resistance. Then colds or sore throat often develop and germs in the mouth get the upper hand. Prompt use of Listerine Antiseptic may often head off an irritated throat and keep a cold from becoming troublesome—because it kills germs associated with these conditions. Roosevelt Remains Mum on Third Term

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt's "plate-side chat" to Jackson Day diners, lauding independent political thinking and joshing everyone from Republicans to himself, brought cheers and laughter—but left unanswered today the question of his future plans.

Democratic leaders who heard the Chief Executive make a jovial and philosophical talk at last night's $100-a-plate celebration interpreted his remarks variously as an indirect bid for a third term, as a valedictory, or merely as a studied effort to "keep 'em guessing."

Even though the President failed to allude to the third term issue, Secretary Wallace, speaking in Des Moines, said flatly that he hoped the "nominee in 1940 would be President Roosevelt." And at Cleveland Robert H. Jackson, newly appointed Attorney General, came virtually as close to advocating a third term.

Taking as his theme "By Their Motives May Ye Know Them," the President told his hearers here and at 44 other dinners that it was not so much the party to which a leader belonged, but the deeds he performed in the interest of the general welfare that counted.

"People tell me," he went on, "that I hold to party ties less tenaciously than most of my predecessors in the presidency, that I have too many people in my Administration who are not active party Democrats.

"I admit the soft impeachment. My answer is that I do believe in party organization, but only in proportion to its proper place in government."

The future, he asserted, lies with those wise political leaders "who realize that the great public is interested more in government than in politics; that the independent vote in this country has been steadily on the increase

"MOTIVE" COUNTS

"The growing independence of voters, after all, has been proved by the votes in every Presidential election since my childhood—and the tendency is on the increase. I am too modest, of course, to refer to the most recent example—the election of 1936.

"Party regulars who want to win must hold their allies and supporters among those independent voters—and don't let us forget it."

DEVER HAT IN RING FOR GOVERNOR

Mayor Tobin and Atty.-Gen. Dever, had only an hour in which to be heard before President Roosevelt went on the air in a national broadcast, to which the diners listened.

Kelly picturing himself the victim of a plot said:

"It is encouraging to definitely learn that the three former Governors, Hurley, Curley and Ely, together with Mayor Tobin and Chairman Burke, had no part in the plot that prevented me from speaking.

"The public will now have no difficulty in solving this undemocratic discrimination against me by the toastmaster and the person from whom the toastmaster took instructions."

Michael McGrath of Lynn acted as toastmaster.

CLAIMS "COLONY" CREDIT

Dever, in making what is regarded as announcement of his gubernatorial ambitions,—attacked the Republican party and gave himself credit for the proposed reopening of stations on the South Shore and Cape Cod which the New Haven had intended to permanently close. Said Dever.

"Had there not been a Democratic attorney-general on guard the commuter of the Old Colony system would have been denied the service to which he is entitled.

"We served the plain people whom Hamilton would despise. We served the poor whom Jackson championed."

Former Gov. Curley was given an ovation when he entered the ballroom where the dinner was held and when he arose to speak.

Radios "Health Food Advisor" Gives You Facts About

ARTHRITIS AND RHEUMATISM

By HENRY K. ROSENBERGER
"Your Health Food Advisor"

For over two years, Henry K. Rosenberger has been featured as "Your Health Food Advisor" on the Nature Food Centres radio program over radio station WCOP in Boston every week day morning at 8:45.

In these broadcasts, Mr. Rosenberger discusses the relationship of food to health, showing the importance of proper diet in maintaining health.

A VICTIM OF ARTHRITIS
This photograph shows a woman in an advanced stage of arthritis. Notice the flabby legs and thick joints of ankles and knees. The hands have also been contorted and twisted out of shape.

If you are a chronic sufferer from Arthritis or Rheumatism, you have, no doubt, tried in many ways to relieve your painful condition. You may have used dozens of jars and bottles of salves and liniments, and have discovered that such preparations bring only temporary relief. For permanent relief, YOU MUST GET AT THE CAUSE OF YOUR TROUBLE. Your doctor will confirm this statement, and only he can do it.

ACIDS IN THE JOINTS

Here is good news for you. Many doctors say that many rheumatic ailments are associated with an excess of acids in the joints. These acids may cause aching pains in hands, arms, shoulders, legs, and back. It is now known that if these acids are neutralized, you may expect relief from your torturing pains. Scientific experiments have proven that a proper diet supplemented with FOOD SODIUM plus FOOD IODINE is a wonderful aid in neutralizing these acids, which may be the cause of your stiffness and soreness.

Get this fact! In each tiny Vig-Ore Sodeom Tablet, you get 20 times more FOOD SODIUM than celery and 100 times more FOOD IODINE than sea fish. You can imagine what a help Vig-Ore Sodeom Tablets can be in helping Nature to neutralize these pain-producing acids. What's more, Vig-Ore Sodeom Tablets are pure sea vegetable products—FREE FROM ALL HARMFUL DRUGS.

FREE DIET BOOK GIVEN

No matter what methods you have used in the past to relieve the painful symptoms of Arthritis or Rheumatism, we earnestly ask you to try a few Vig-Ore Sodeom Tablets daily according to directions. We are so confident in these wonderful tablets, that we make you this Special Offer. TEAR OUT THE COUPON BELOW — present it with $1.95 at your nearest Nature Food Centres store and get a large bottle of Vig-Ore Sodeom Tablets (several weeks' supply) plus a FREE copy of the famous "Anti-Arthritis Diet".

Holmes to Lecture On Finland Saturday

Burton Holmes opens his new travelogue series Saturday afternoon, Symphony Hall, with "Heroic, Friendly Finland," which presents the story of a courageous people before the present conflict had erased its serenity. On the succeeding Saturday afternoon, Mr. Holmes will speak on "Around the World a Different Way."

'Daytime Wife' Tops Bowdoin Bill

"Daytime Wife," co-starring Tyrone Power and Linda Darnell, "20,000 Men a Year," timely drama based on the government's civilian pilot training program with Randolph Scott and Preston Foster, open tomorrow on the Bowdoin Square screen.

Sequel to 'One For the Money'

"Two For The Show," musical revue sequel to "One For The Money," is scheduled for a Boston premiere at the Shubert Theater Monday evening, Jan. 22.

About half of the cast of "Two For The Show" are holdover members of last year's show. Only one change has been made in the line-up of names associated with the production of it.

Nancy Hamilton, who last year appeared in the show she had authored, will not be seen in this show's cast. She has written the sketches and Lucy Morgan Lewis reports as composer.

Producers Gertrude Macy and Stanley Gilkey announce that John Murray Anderson is again in charge of production.

Black and White Revue Gayety Hit

The Gayety's "Black and White Burlesque Revue" is proving one of the most popular attractions at this burlesque house.

Between comics Harry "Boob" Meyers and Tangi Lee Bates and charmers Vilma Josey and Jean Vickers and their respective supporting groups and the specialties, headed by Charles Willis and the fun-making Glen and Jenkins, the current revue rates as highly spiced entertainment.

Clowns and Cuties Share Howard Bill

Clowns and cuties divide honors in the Old Howard's current burlesque revue, "Hot, Hot and Beautiful." In the one class, Fred Binder and Jack Rosen take the lead. In the other, Tanya the "Boneless Stronze Beauty," is all by herself and could be none other featured performer in the Body Scratches" Willard James X. Furmaa, Loretta Montez, Franklyn Hopkins Four Arleys and the Miller Bros.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

EVERYONE expresses surprise when they hear that Joan Tozzer, national women's skating champion, is going to be married and live in Honolulu . . . for tropical climes, though swell for the tourist trade, don't produce much ice for skating . . .

But Joan — who, under the tutelage of her fiance, Phil Spalding, Jr., and several of his Hawaiian cousins who've been visiting here, has become a sort of combination chamber of commerce and publicity agent for the Isles of Paradise — insists that there will be plenty of ice for skating . . .

This may be very true . . . but the fact remains that when romance skates into their lives the Queens of the Silver Skates are apt to revert to type and forget all about their careers . . .

Just a few years ago Sue Davis, another Boston skating champion, married a man from the deep South where ice is just something square to put in juleps . . . yet when last heard from Sue was happy and contented, enjoying life as a wife . . . (the poetry is supposed to be in the thought and not the rhyme) . . .

The gathering of Honolulu friends and relatives at Joan's engagement party, was a sort of intercollegiate conclave, several colleges and schools were represented . . . They all had a party at the Balinese Room before Winifred Sperry went back to her classes at Sthel Walker . . . She's from Honolulu, too, and plans to make her debut in New York next winter . . . Her blonde hair was set off by a black dress with a scarlet bodice, and a tiny Persian lamb hat . . .

Congratulated by Friends

JOAN AND PHIL, of course, were radiant as one friend after another went over to their table to congratulate them . . . The bride-to-be wore a simple gray wool dress with demure white collar and cuffs, and a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley . . .

Among their collegian friends who joined in the chorus of the wedding march played by Harry Marshard were Bayard Dillingham of Honolulu and Harvard; Charles C. Spalding, a cousin of the bridegroom-to-be; Allen Lovejoy of Yale and Dagmar Cook of Honolulu and Sarah Lawrence College . . .

Sub-deb Mary O'Day, one of Joan's schoolmates at May-Brimmer, was in a party with her sister, Dorothy, Beth Moir and several other friends . . . Mary chose a scarlet moire gown to set off her black hair . . . Dottie made her usual beautifully groomed appearance in a silver brocaded gown with orchids on her shoulder, and Beth chose a black dress with a gold embroidered red wool evening jacket . . .

Vincent Club Starts Drive for Ads

NEXT WEEK a little of the glitter will be rubbed off the wings of the season's social butterflies . . . when they become advertising salesmen and begin to pound the pavements selling "space" in the program for Vincent Ventures, the annual musical revue put on by the Vincent Club to raise money for the Vincent Memorial Hospital . . .

All the new members (most of whom are debs) will spend the next few weeks soliciting ads . . . (the one who sells the most is always awarded a handsome prize) . . . and after the advertising campaign come try-outs for the show and a month of rehearsing before the actual performances in early April . . .

Vincent officers took a little time off from their executive routine to gather round the open fire in their headquarters at the Somerset yesterday afternoon . . . Over the tea cups they discussed everything from plans for the show to Australia's tennis stars . . . Mrs. George Bemis of Milton one of the vice-presidents, who has a brother living "down under" was one of the gracious hostesses together with Mrs. Henry McB. Parker, the Vincent's popular president; Mrs. Arthur Dupee, Jr., Jane Megrew and Mrs. Henry K. White, Jr. . . . In the adjoining office, Mrs. Charlie Buell and Mrs. B. D. Crowinshield were as busy as bees clicking the typewriter keys, filing businesslike documents and answering the phone . . .

JOY KIMBALL and Mrs. Charles L. J. Noble (left to right), two prominent Junior League executives, are devoting much of their time this month to the success of the educational campaign of the 1940 Community Fund. Miss Kimball's home is in Milton, and Mrs. Nobel, the former Susan Means, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Means of Brookline.

Southern Club Honors Lee

The Southern Club of Boston will commemorate the birthday of the great Southern general, Robert E. Lee, at the annual Robert E. Lee Assembly and Ball at the Copley-Plaza Friday evening.

Club members in the receiving line will include Mr. and Mrs. John West, Mrs. Charles E. Murnan, Mrs. Mary Belle Gay, Mrs. Andrew McLaughlin, Mrs. M. A. Swarthout and Mrs. John H. McClary.

Major Robert E. Green, president, is in charge of arrangements and the ushers will be Andrew McLaughlin, Willard B. Freeman, Charles Kefauver, Dayton Kefauver, Henry P. Brown and Vanness Wolff.

Lose Extra Pounds Happily

CHOOSE TASTY FOODS LOW IN CALORIES

"Is that really me?" gasps Mrs. Pudgy, catching a glimpse of her rear view in the mirror.

A shock to Mrs. Pudgy to see how she's gained. Yet she could reduce in no time if she'd adopt the low-calory diet that gave her friend, Mrs. Slim, such a girlish figure.

But knowing nothing about calories, Mrs. Pudgy doesn't see much difference between her meals and Mrs. Slim's. Let's look!

For lunch, Mrs. Pudgy had breaded veal cutlet—283 calories, ½ cup corn pudding—147 calories, ½ cup Brown Betty—250 calories That's 680 calories.

Mrs. Slim ordered a slice of roast veal—only 100 calories, ½ cup spinach—20 calories, ½ cup tapioca cream—127 calories. Only 247 calories in all.

No difference in quantities—but what a difference in calories! And it's the calories that make fat.

Our 40-page booklet, Change Your Weight For Beauty's Sake, has a 3-day liquid diet to start your reducing, menus for 42 low-calory meals based on protective foods which keep you peppy, firm-fleshed. Has calory chart, menus for gaining, too.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, Change Your Weight For Beauty's Sake, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th St., New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Specials for Breakfast

By MARTHA LEE

While some people merely take a cup of coffee and a roll "on the run" in the morning, there are still a great many who really enjoy their breakfast and want something worth while getting up for.

To our way of thinking, breakfast should be given as much attention in any household as luncheon or dinner, and there are endless ways and combinations for making it a more interesting meal rather than something to be gotten over.

FRUIT FOR BREAKFAST

Let's start with fruit, as most of us like it in some form or other—raw, stewed, dried or canned. Below is a list of the most popular fruits.

Orange Juice, Tomato Juice, Stewed Prunes, Canned Pineapple Juice, Grapefruit, Canned Grapefruit Juice, Bananas, Dates or Raisins with Cereal, Sliced Oranges, Prune Juice, Stewed Apricots, Baked Apples, Apple Sauce, Canned Peaches or Apricots, Melons, Grapes, Berries in season.

Then for those who like two fruits for breakfast and can afford it, there are ways of getting around this by serving prunes in orange juice one day, orange juice and sliced bananas another day, etc.

PRUNE PUDDING

This is something new in breakfast foods, and a popular one once your family tries it. Pit stewed prunes, sweeten the juice and thicken it with cornstarch, season with a dash of salt and cinnamon with a little lemon juice added

BREAKFAST CEREALS

Then comes the matter of cereals Some families alternate hot and cold cereals; some serve cereal every other day and an egg dish or pancakes on alternate days. With the great variety of cereals in the market, however, one need never tire of either hot or cold cereal, although there are some people who can eat their favorite cereal 365 days a year.

If the family wants a change, try mixing several kinds—all bran, cornflakes, or other dry cereals; or try cooking equal parts of a whole and a refined wheat cereal together. Another way to make cereals more interesting is to serve fruits with them—a few sliced dates or raisins, sliced bananas, stewed apricots and canned fruits are equally good.

HOW WILL YOU HAVE BREAD?

As for toast, breakfast doesn't seem complete without some kind, to many people, whether it's dry, buttered, cinnamon, cheese, orange, honey, milk or French—enough kinds to please the most fastidious And using variety in breads makes a difference, too. You might try making French toast in a waffle iron with raisin bread for something extra special. Then, of course, there are favorite doughnuts, pancakes, waffles, muffins, pop-overs which come under extra specials, too, and are nice for Sunday mornings.

EGGS

Eggs offer almost inexhaustible ways of being served, too; baked or shirred, served in bacon rings, poached, scrambled with croutons, fried or steamed, to say nothing of the unlimited choice of omelets.

And some more real specials which are usually kept in reserve for Sundays are things like finnan haddie baked in milk, salt mackerel with creamed potatoes, lamb kidneys on toast, and fried apples.

Make a 'Sloppy Joe' Sweater

IF YOU'VE shopped around for one, you know it's really quite hard to find one of the new longer cardigans that is long enough . . . and usually those which are long as a houn' dog's ears are about 18 dollars. So we went to work on our handicraft direction providers, and here's the result. Not only a real "Sloppy Joe" cardigan, but one which has the additional touch of newness . . . a binding of plaid grosgrain ribbon, with buttons to match. This is made of a new "Heathglen" yarn that's perfectly adapted to the Brooks type cardigan, with raglan shoulders. If you wish, of course, you may substitute the matching solid-tone grosgrain. We think a nice touch is a plaid grosgrain Scotch bonnet to match the edging, however. For your set of knitting directions, just write to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston American, and please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Good Manners

You Must Study Dancing

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Too many girls, as evidenced in their letters to me, think that the way to learn to dance is to go to dances. Apparently they think that because they are good-looking, wear pretty dance frocks and are popular, these assets will in some mysterious way make them good dance partners. They won't!

Those men who like to dance will ask them to dance—just once. You may be popular elsewhere, but you won't be popular on the dance floor if you depend on your dance partners to teach you.

GO TO A DANCING SCHOOL

Make the New Year a joyous one for yourself by resolving to learn to dance. Use some of that money Aunt Mary gave you for Christmas; go to a dancing school, or join a group of friends who are combining to engage a dancing teacher.

First you'll be taught the basic steps. Between the lessons practise these steps alone at every opportunity you can get—in front of a long mirror, if possible. Imagine a partner leading you in these steps and visualize yourself following his leading.

If you are inclined to be heavy, whether in pounds or of foot, make a Spartan effort toward grace and lightness. For your comfort, remember that it's absolutely true that many of the best dancers are fat men and women who are "light on their feet!"

Don't be "fancy" in your dancing. Don't wave your arms about or pump them up and down while you dance; this is maddening to a good partner.

TWO WARNINGS

If things don't seem to be going too well and you are missing your partner's lead too often, do a quick bit of analysis to try to see what's wrong. You may be hanging "dead weight" on your partner's arm, that that it's difficult for him to guide you. Or your steps may be too short, or you may be bending your knees too much, or your feet may be too far apart. Whatever the fault, it is undoubtedly something that can be immediately corrected.

Two more important warnings. If, at the beginning of the dance, you miss your partner's lead once or twice, don't get flustered and spend your time and effort in apologizing. The more you apologize, the worse things will get.

Second, if you see that you're not following your partner's lead too well, don't try to take his attention away from your poor dancing by nonchalantly humming or singing the tune that the orchestra is playing.

You Can Be Beautiful

Coddle Body-Complexion

By ARLINE GOULD

IT ISN'T true that the emollient softener which works miracles for one girl will do the same for you . . . and remember that when you shop for hand and body lotions. For the skin of your hands and body vary in their oil content and production just as your face does.

There's nothing much that we can recommend except the trial and error method Though we can tell you of a wonderful special on a particularly bland and mild pair that's going on right now . . . made by a firm which is famous for the wholesome ingredients featured in everything from lipstick to face powder.

These are real helps to winter beauty, a "smooth skin lotion" which should be used after the bath, with concentration on the neck and shoulders, and arms and legs. We suggest, if you're particularly troubled by chapping and soreness, that you let one thin coating of the lotion seep into your pores after you've gone to work briskly with a bath towel. Then follow up with another. And it won't hurt you to splash on three coats on your neck and shoulders . . . remember that they come out into the open for winter formal decolletages, and you'll be happy to show lovely, smooth shoulders after a week or two of such painstaking routine.

As for the hand-cream, it is ever so gently perfumed so that the perfume itself won't be irritating to the skin. The regular 85c size of each ($1.70 value) is to be had in a pair for [illegible]

If you'd like to learn about this winter-beauty special on hand and body softeners and coddlers, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, weekdays until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love And Marriage

Need Not Give Up Girl

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 18 years of age and have been going with a girl for six months, although I have known her for a year and a half. We have become very attached to each other.

Now here is my problem. At present I am out of a job, and cannot give her the things that other boys can. I know that she isn't very happy sitting home all the time Sometimes we walk to the picture show around the corner, whenever I can scrape up a few dimes.

Do you think it would be wise for me to stay away until I can at least find a job so I will be able to treat her more often? I want to make her proud of me.

[illegible]

If you take the young lady to the movies occasionally why won't I have dozens of letters from [illegible] who would be quite satisfied to have a young man do that much for them. And if she knows you are out of a job why should she expect to go places continually?

Have you looked into the possibilities of the N Y A (National Youth Administration) to see if they have any suggestions for you in the way of getting a job? They are doing a good deal at the present time toward training both girls and boys toward that end.

Apply to the principal in the real high school who administers student Aid, and he may be able to give you a steer toward getting a job or fitting yourself for a job

Unappreciative Guest Her Problem

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

What do you think of my problem? I invited a certain young man, whom I had known for a year, to my house for dinner and to spend the day. He came and everything went off beautifully When he left I told him I'd all again but he hasn't come back since, yet he's always present when I meet him on the street.

While he was on his summer vacation he sent me a card and said he hoped to see me when he got home, but I haven't seen him since. Do you think it would be all right to send him a note and thank him for the card and invite him to call?

WONDERING.

No, I don't believe I'd thank the young man for the card by letter, or again invite him to call, unless you happen to meet him casually and could make the invitation general. It seems to me you've given him enough encouragement. He may have found himself becoming interested in you and have felt he was not in a position to become more serious

Modern Glamour Girls -:- By George Clarke

"... and there was one crowned with a platinum crown of glamorous glory! ..."

HOLLYWOOD press departments are factories of glamour! Tootie Twinkles wins a beauty contest, or is picked by a talent scout out of a high school play, or just plain hitch-hikes to Hollywood to crash the extra lines, and, no matter how she gets there, finally wins a nod from the casting director and the press department goes to work on her.

Sometimes she never gets any farther along than a Thanksgiving pose with a turkey, widely distributed to the press of the country for free publication.

Sometimes she's got more on the ball than pretty legs, good teeth and a fetching smile . . . and then the boys really go to town for her.

She poses in bathing suits, and in ball gowns. She gets some sort of a cock-eyed title—"It Girl of 1919" or "Oomph Gal of 1939"—and her kisser is displayed in stills and magazine articles all over the place.

She gets to be as well known as a chewing gum advertisement, and, on the basis of the buildup, theoretically, at least, becomes 'box office'—a strange term, which, translated, means that when her name is attached to a movie thousands will flock to the theaters of the country for that, and for no other reason.

But no matter how great the buildup, she's still got to make good . . . and to make good in Hollywood is to do a good job of acting in a picture which has a good story, good direction, and good photography. Then, and then only, when this happy combination has been achieved, does she really start to go places. Finally she does become a star, and, by fighting off bad casting and poor stories, manages to stay there for awhile, or, until some nincompoop decides that she is through.

Then she goes on lease to Columbia, maybe, or some of the smaller studios, and, the chances are, makes a picture like "It Happened One Night," or "A Star Is Born"—and then it starts all over again.

She may be beautiful, talented, really a great actress, and never get anywhere at all . . . but that's Hollywood.

Last year it was Ann Sheridan and Hedy LaMarr . . . This year it'll be Lana Turner . . . and so it goes, with the busy factory grinding out beauties for your approval, and yours, and yours.

Once it was Clara Bow, the "It" girl, and then it was Jean Harlow . . . and it is that lovely girl's career, ended in its flowering, which is the subject of this dissertation on glamour and what it takes.

JEAN HARLOW was just another high school girl in Kansas City when she started out to make a career for herself. In Chicago she married Charles F. McGrew, a broker, but that didn't last long, and she finally hit the extra line in Hollywood.

Hundreds of girls hit that line every year, and hundreds never get anywhere at all. Jean had a pretty face, but so did most of the others. She had a lovely figure, but so did the rest of them. She had a bright, charming voice—so what?

Now, it happened—and careers are built on the coincidence of utterly unrelated circumstances—a young millionaire, whose dad did most of the drilling for oil in Texas, and who was canny enough to hold on to a bit of ownership of the wells he dug, decided he wanted to make movies . . . so he, too, went to Hollywood . . . and you can believe that Howard Hughes was the answer to the prayer of many a broken down actor, director and technical man.

GLAMOROUS JEAN HARLOW OF THE PLATINUM HAIR

She Scaled Hollywood's Heights in 'Hell's Angels'

THEY were to have been married, William Powell and she, and on her finger she wore his great, star sapphire. But keeping slim had taken toll of her, she wasn't well."

And he started a picture which he called "Hell's Angels," because he was interested in aviation, too . . . and because she was easy to hire, and didn't have to do too much acting, Jean Harlow was cast as the heroine.

Cameramen sighted their lenses on her, and groaned. She was pretty enough, but her hair was drab and dull. They told her to "touch it up," that it would look better.

She reported for work with a great, bobbed mop of hair the color of pulled taffy . . . and to everyone's amazement, it photographed like a million.

Howard Hughes poured six millions of dollars into "Hell's Angels" before he had a picture . . . and then the exploitation began.

By some happy chance a press agent hit upon the phrase, "Platinum Blond."

Now there were light colored blondes long before Jean Harlow. Rena Rogers, the wife of Frank Borsage, the great director, was a light blonde, and so was Connie Johnson, and dozens of others. But "Platinum Blond" meant something, and stuck.

The big, healthy, exuberant girl with the flashy white hair became a household word . . . and women throughout the country, no matter what was their natural coloration, became platinum blondes over night . . . well, over the week-end.

White, taffy-colored heads bobbed around in cafes and nightclubs. They stuck out like cotton balls in department stores. School rooms were filled with them.

Jean Harlow was made . . . and by a hair wash.

AFTER she divorced young McGrew, she married quiet, gentle, eminently intelligent Paul Bern, an executive of the M-G-M studios who, she said, "has had more influence over me than any other person." But he was middle-aged, and after a secret quarrel, which ended when she went home to her mother, he committed suicide leaving a strange, cryptic note, asking forgiveness "for that farce the other night."

Then she married Hal Rosson, famous cameraman, and rich—he earns as much as many a star, as much as $4000-a-week — and they were happy together, but only for a little while. Hollywood speculated, but soon forgot, and she accepted the attentions of William Powell.

They were to have been married, Powell and she, and on her finger she wore his great, star sapphire. But keeping slim had taken toll of her, she wasn't well.

"I feel that I am going away and will never come back," she told her secretary one morning. Within a week she was on her death bed, killed by a pernicious poisoning of her system.

At 22 she was dead, after having been married three times unhappily in three years, and after having scaled the heights to the uttermost pinnacle of Hollywood success.

And if her story seems tragic, it need not seem so for, after all, she crammed a good deal of living into those few years.

All because of a hair-do! . . .

What the Best Dressed Man Will Wear

If New England clothiers have their way, the well-dressed man of 1940's summer will be a streamlined rainbow.

Absolutely authentic, 250 of the New England Retail Clothiers and Furnishers Assn. reported today is the Oriental sport coat, th told of pleated backs, and shorts with cuffs jerked on them! That's for lounge wear, you know, and the finishing touch includes red-colored mountaineer socks which are formal enough for the best beach club.

Business attire will favor pin-stripe," unfinished worsted suits, lounge models, with pleated trousers. Average quality sport and summer business suits was rated at $55-$60, maybe less, depending on market conditions.

The clothiers are holding a three-day convention at the Parker House. Principal speakers today include C. E. Palmer, president of the Client, Peabody Co. Exec. John Wycroft Mettler of the Interwoven Stocking Co., Pres. Elmer Ward of the Goodall Co. and Exec. Asst. Bucker of the Hickok Manufacturing Co.

Newly elected officers will be honored at a luncheon tomorrow.

NEW ENGLAND MEN are sartorially smarter and sprucer than their fathers and grandfathers.

Rapidly disappearing are the funereal garments of stodgy conservatism. The 1940 man dares to be himself.

The tribute comes from the New England Retail Clothiers' and Furnishers' Association, which is holding its annual convention in Boston.

One has only to spend a half-hour in Washington street to realize that the clothing men are right.

Bostonians and New Englanders are social and good-natured, and THEY REFLECT IT.

The austerity and self-consciousness associated with our part of the country exist chiefly in the over-worked imaginations of writers and novelists elsewhere.

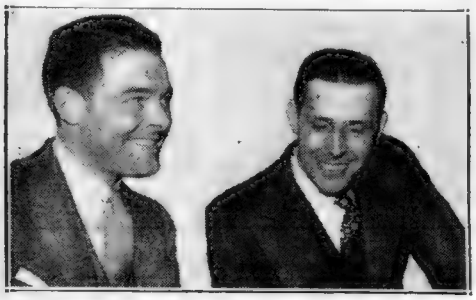
Pretense and masquerades ceased to be popular here when they ceased to be popular in New York, Chicago and points West.

We are not relics of the Mauve Age, animated antiques or tradition-bound Victorians.

We are Twentieth Century Americans, completely in accord with the needs and demands of the present day.

No other big city has a better looking or more stylishly dressed mayor than Maurice J. Tobin.

Certainly no other State has a more correctly garbed Senator than Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr.



U. S. SENATOR LODGE AND MAYOR TOBIN
Typical New Englanders in Dress and Appearance

And, as every New Englander knows, these two men are not exceptions. Equally dapper are Attorney-General Paul A. Dever, Sheriff Frederick T. Sullivan and Boston Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty.

Nor is this sartorial splendor restricted to political life. Everywhere, in colleges, in business offices, in all places of assembly, one is sure to see masculine clothes that mirror energetic personalities.

There is a reason, and we unhesitatingly give it:

The average New Englander's innate flair for style and his inherent good taste blend harmoniously and produce the BEST DRESSED MAN.

AN IMPORTANT ASSET to a growing city is an aggressive, enterprising Chamber of Commerce.

Boston's Chamber of Commerce, under the direction of Oscar W. Haussermann, president, and M. D. Liming, secretary, is an important asset.

Looking forward, the Chamber pledges itself to promote new industries and trade outlets, to oppose dangerous restrictions on business, and to endeavor further to improve relations between employer and employe.

A year ago, the Chamber announced a similar program and backed it with ACTION.

As a result, Mr. Liming is now able to tell us that his organization's work has caused more than 80 new manufacturing plants to be located in the metropolitan area, at least 3500 jobs to be created, and more than 75,000 persons from other parts of the country to be attracted to conventions held here.

With such a record of accomplishments, the Chamber can convincingly say, "We WILL do more."

FAMOUS AGAIN is Mrs. Effie I. Canning Carlton. Her lonely death in Boston City Hospital reminds the world that more than 65 years ago she composed the air of the most famous of lullabies, "Rock-a-bye Baby."

Undoubtedly, individuals and organizations, saddened by knowledge of the poverty Mrs. Carlton knew in the last days of her life, will raise monuments or endow scholarships to perpetuate her memory.

Though good-intentioned, these gestures will at best be empty and futile.

Mrs. Carlton's real memorial is her own melody.

Long after the monuments have fallen and the scholarships vanished, mothers in every land will sing "Rock-a-bye Baby."

Refugees

THEIR homes in flames, the refugees . . . the victims of barbaric war . . . driven by fate's unkind decrees . . . seek hopefully a foreign shore.

War's fury now on these is spent . . . In knightly clash of arms engaged . . . no heroes fight, but war is waged . . . against the weak and innocent.

A Christian world?—No better than . . . the pagan or Mohammedan . . . so long as tyrannies obtain . . . the banner of our Christ to stain . . . and man strikes down his fellow man.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

WENDELL L. WILLKIE, like the also comparatively young Floyd Odlum, is a success stand-out of the depression years. He didn't coast into eminence. He pulled up-stream. Being a Hoosier, with a small-town background, he assays a rich content of attributes known as "human," and is, therefore, definitely in bounds in this department.

When a man is formally anointed as a candidate for the Presidency, the boosters and boomers usually fashion a synthetic personality which may be quite at odds with the real man. I don't think this will happen when and if Mr. Willkie officially breaks from the post in the Presidential sweepstakes.

He isn't good material for the Warwicks who work with the political "ersatz" of supposedly popular preference. He isn't too fastidious about his dress, he never owned an automobile, and when he makes a speech it is easy colloquial discourse and not print language. That would be the old "homespun" tip-off for the journeyman President-maker, but he wouldn't get very far with it.

Mr. Willkie would make the same kind of a speech before the Elks of his native Elwood, Ind., as he would make before the Bond Club of New York.

HEARING Mr. Willkie deliver a simple, concise address at a New York club a few months ago,

WENDELL L. WILLKIE
"He Pulled Up-Stream"

I thought his wavy, somewhat recalcitrant hair might be a clue to his mind. The most intolerant man I ever knew had slick, straight hair, sharply parted and plastered down, with no single hair out of place. One would have known to look at him that his universe was all set off in clearly defined zones of good and evil, of black and white. You realize that the not always discernible part in Mr. Willkie's hair might shift a bit, right or left.

I have always had an idea that Dr. Franz Boas, or some similarly qualified researcher, might do a monograph on qualities of humor and tolerance disclosed by the way a man wears his hair—or how it just naturally grows, at any rate.

Tall, loose-jointed and friendly, Mr. Willkie is the last person in the world to fit into a scheme of push-button economics, and it seems a "natural," as the pool sharks say, that he should become the bulwark of resistance to governmental encroachment on business.

As President of the Commonwealth and Southern since 1933, he has become the white hope of the utilities, in fighting New Deal "strangulation" policies, as they see them. But he has done plenty of fighting for the underdog in his day, and went more than a block or two with the New Deal in its early humane endeavors.

I QUOTE HERE a previously published reference to Mr. Willkie by a friend who has long familiarity with his human qualities:

"The man has charm. He also has humor. He isn't fussy about his clothes, but he is entirely unself-conscious about them and is intent on the job in hand rather than the impression he makes. He can understand another man's point of view. They used to call him the 'Bit' Borah of Akron.' He cares nothing for making a splash. He brings to the world of business a clearly defined and humane social viewpoint."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—Saturday morning Anna and I spent an hour at the home economic exhibit in the patio of the Department of Agriculture Building. Though I had seen it before, I found it even more interesting, because there was no great crowd and we could really read all the material which explains the different exhibits.

Of course, the work done by the Bureau of Home Economics is so far-reaching because the information goes to State colleges with extension services all over the country, and even has contacts with a great many individual homes.

After all, nothing is more important than the help we can give the individual housewife to improve the health of her family and to make her home more comfortable.

LATE SATURDAY afternoon, the Women's Committee of the National Committee for the Infantile Paralysis Drive met here and gave a broadcast, which I hoped proved of interest to the country.

I have so often found misunderstandings as to how the money raised at the Birthday Balls is spent, that I was glad to have them state clearly that 50 per cent of this money remains in the communities where it is raised; that the other 50 per cent goes to the National Foundation and is used for research which needs to be done, for we do not yet know how to keep people from being paralyzed by this dread disease, even though we know more about the treatment than we did a few years ago.

FIRST LADY APPEALS FOR PARALYSIS VICTIMS
Explains How Birthday Ball Funds Are Allocated

The Committee also allocates money to communities where epidemics occur and gives grants for the development of facilities to care for infantile paralysis patients in different parts of the country.

I was quite overcome when I found how many women had come from distant states for the broadcast and tea, and the dinner which followed. I learned a great deal at the dinner, for I had been laboring under the delusion that a serum had been found which, if used early enough, would be beneficial. I discovered I was wrong, and also discovered that the experiments made for the spray for the nose had not proved beneficial.

Anna, John and I went out walking Sunday morning, for the ground is still not good for riding. We were all very sad to have them leave us Sunday to start on their journey back to Seattle. The grandchildren will be with us until Friday, when they will go to join their father and mother in Chicago for the rest of the trip.

WILL NEW JUSTICE BE CONSERVATIVE?

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Some New Dealers aren't quite sure that Frank Murphy won't become a conservative on the Supreme Court bench. That's why one of their first messages to him was: "Don't get a law secretary until you hear from us. We'll help you pick one" ... Eddie Cantor has a new commercial program. The contract offered him provides that his program be nonpolitical ... Cantor's Refugee Children's Fund will be the sole beneficiary of the Grossinger reunion dance tonight at the Manhattan Center. Every star in town will attend ... William Schack, the biographer of Louis M. Eilshemius, the eccentric artist, has formed a committee to exert pressure on the art dealers to help the impoverished artist by giving him a percentage of all sales of Eilshemius paintings.

IF THE new Nugent-Thurber play, "The Male Animal," succeeds in New York, Mrs. Nugent will play the ingenue lead on the road tour . . . Metro had an option on the movie rights to Christopher Morley's "Kitty Foyle" for $25,000. When that option was dropped Morley received $50,000 for those rights from Paramount . . . Stuyvesant Van Veer, the muralist, now is sitting with Judge Panken in the Court of Domestic Relations to get sketches for the mural he's doing for Philadelphia's Municipal Court . . Mary Small has four commercial broadcasts next week . . . The film version of "Our Town"—the play which had no scenery—will use more than 35 sets.

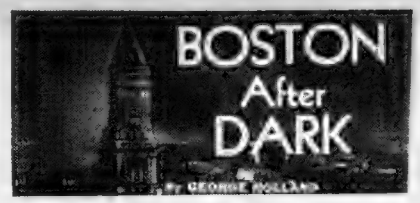
"I saw you on a horse in many pictures," was the wrestler's defense, "and you were thrown" . . . "Yes," said Autry, "but that was in the script" . . . "Well," Dudd countered, "ditto" . . . WHEN the Graf Spee limped into Montevideo, Paul White, the CBS Director of Special Events, cabled frantically to the Uruguayan capital, seeking a radio man who might broadcast the stories . . . He couldn't find any and had to hire a Buenos Aires telephone official—who got scooped by the rival NBC . . . Sunday he learned that John S. Young, the radio announcer who now is Radio Director for the World's Fair, was in Montevideo at the time trying to get the Uruguayan stations to help the fair by giving him broadcasting time.



EXCLUSIVE (AND IMPORTANT): The name of Martin is the strongest sort of a possible addition to the Massachusetts roll of honor headed by the name of Adams and ended—while history waits—with that of Coolidge . . . We base this on surprising facts which have been presented to this department by a gentleman who really knows his Washington . . . He knows his Republican party particularly well . . . He states with firm assurance that the delegations to the Republican national convention which will represent Michigan and New York will swing positively to Congressman Joseph F. Martin, minority leader of the House, if their first-choices—both "native sons"—go down in the dust in the early polling . . . And there is a very good chance, too, of another state with a "favorite son," Ohio, adopting the Martin candidacy as the second choice to Senator Taft.

AS AN OUTSTANDING "DARKHORSE"—perhaps the chief among the "unexpecteds"—Congressman Martin's support is not a localized showing in any respect, and this particular Washington observer, who has given the presidential setup a thorough study, sees support for the talented Joe rolling in from the plains, the mountains, the Pacific slope—and of course, New England . . . He concedes him no chance at all in the solid Democratic south, and if anything, this appreciation of a situation so that it becomes undistorted through enthusiasm, strengthens the probability of the survey.

I ASKED MY INFORMANT how possibly he could have a line so early on the intentions of a few state delegations which have not yet even been selected . . . The reply was that political sharps from various states know with a fair degree of accuracy the ingredients—perennial ingredients in most cases—of state delegations . . . Enough leaders, at any rate, are predictable at this stage of the game to make an advance survey possible . . . And this gentleman has not been popping off to this corner for the pleasure of trying his forensic powers in front of an animated audience . . . He has been working at his survey, and when he took his perch on a Capitol corner much of his information was supplied him voluntarily.

MINORITY LEADER MARTIN declines, his friends regret, to entertain any hope for the presidency . . . To entertain any pleasure at the prospect would be more accurate . . . The popular Congressman from Bristol County is entirely sincere . . . He not only will not seek the job . . . At present—he does not want it . . . The Martin ambition embraces the second most powerful job in the Capitol, that of Speaker of the House . . . It is in this niche, moreover, that he would best fit, in the opinion of others besides himself . . . There is a crying need for a successor to the colorful "Uncle Joe" Cannon, and in the newspaperman from North Attleboro most of the Republican leaders see potentialities which they esteem as no less than great . . . We hope you will keep this little story in mind when the Republicans are fighting it out to choose a

AHERNE TO CO-STAR IN SKINNER PLAY

By Louella O. Parsons

Brian Aherne

CHICAGO, Jan. 9—There's more than meets the eye to the supposedly casual New York vacation trip of Brian Aherne and Joan Fontaine, Jan. 25 Brian and Cornelia Otis Skinner start rehearsals on "Beaux Stratagem" in which they'll not only co-star but will play the financial "angels" of the production as well. This won't be a new play venture for Brian since he did it several times on the stage in London before he came to Hollywood.

Interesting also to hear that if Joan Fontaine regains her strength, for she has been far from a well girl, she will appear with her groom and Miss Skinner in their play venture which opens Feb. 18 in Princeton, N. J. Several of my amateur preview critics have sent me glowing comments about Joan's performance in "Rebecca," and there's no doubt—she's no longer just Olivia De Havilland's little sister

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Margot Stevenson and Cary Grant a new combination at the Beverly Derby; saw Edward Everett Horton who asked me to run over to see him between shows. He has been playing in "Springtime for Henry" and now goes to Washington for the President's Birthday Ball.

LILLIAN GISH opens in Chicago in the "Life With Father" company and it's interesting that fair-haired Lillian turned down a motion picture for David Wark Griffith to accept this screamingly funny stage play which is one of Broadway's great hits; haven't had time to run in and see Clifton Webb who is playing here in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" in the Monty Woolley role

ANDY DEVINE passed through Chicago en route to Nashville for a personal appearance tour; had a wire from Laura Hope Crews who leaves soon for Palm Beach. She and Frey Brown were guests at a big party Moss Hart gave and it sounded like fun. Joan Crawford was there with Franchot Tone and I'm wondering what Betty Grable is doing—Franchot was really a nightly stagedoor caller at "Du Barry Was a Lady" until Joan appeared in New York. Helen Hayes also was at the Hart party; hear the Sunday nights at the Troc are as glamorous as ever; Bruce Cabot was there with Mignon Woideman, Los Angeles socialite—Joan Bennett with John McLaine, Ilona Massey, Herbert Marshall and Lee Russell and the Robert Youngs.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

THE WESTERN Limited snaked through the California mountains. The setting sun shone into the observation car. It intensified Sandra Storm's young blonde beauty.

She pleaded: "I hate to be typed as a glamour girl! I want the title role in 'The Mountain Mother'."

Beside her, the producer of Super Films said: "If I knew you could do it, I'd say yes. But I've no time to test you. That film goes into production tomorrow morning. And you star in the kind of musical you did on the New York stage."

The actress rose, saying she was going to her drawing room. Across the aisle, a G-man looked after her speculatively. Suddenly he handcuffed his rat-faced companion to the chair.

He said: "Going to wire my office at the next stop."

The producer remained in his seat.

WHEN THE G-MAN returned, his prisoner snarled: "You can't make me confess to something I know nothin' about!"

The G-man replied: "Then I'll tell you. Last night the post office was robbed at Lone Pine, where we boarded the train. As the robber left with his loot, Mrs. Jones, who lives on the edge of town, drove past. He slugged her and stole her car, but she lived long enough to be found and give a description of the robber. I was summoned from Los Angeles and saw her dead. This afternoon I found you at the mines, where you were working."

The other said nervously: "You didn't find no loot. Because I'd been visitin' my girl all night in Gum Creek. An' I never saw that Mrs. Jones—"

HE STOPPED, startled. Dusk was settling over the mountains. The car was shadowy.

The front end door had opened noiselessly. Down the aisle a frail figure tottered. Her wrinkled face was badly bruised and her eyes, deep-set like those of the dead, were bent accusingly on him.

Shrinking against his captor, he screamed: "Mrs. Jones!"

The G-man said pleasantly: "Okay, Miss Storm. You can take off the clothes Mrs. Jones wore when this rat killed her. And I hope your makeup proves to your boss that you can handle the role you wanted."

The amazed producer said: "Yes!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

YOU SAY you can't understand women. You never know how to take them—never know what they'll be up to next.

Stop trying to understand women—as women. Think of them as you'd think of men. Judge them by the standards which you'd use with a man.

There's no longer any reason why women shouldn't be judged by man's standards.

Time was when there was a tremendous chasm between man life and woman life. Nature had started the sexes out evenly enough—making them all of a piece—but society had molded the woman into something that was neither fish, flesh nor fowl. A parasitic creature, without legal rights, denied education or social experience, depending on man for her very right to live. Society had made woman live like a gopher, and she thought like a gopher — circuitously, groping and conniving in the dark.

THAT TIME has passed—much to the regret of many ladies who found it extremely convenient.

There is no longer any reason for treating woman differently from a man . . . or for granting her special consideration or exemption.

There are no "sex distinctions" in man and woman nature. Her brains and emotions function exactly as his function. She loves as hard, hates as hard, thinks as straight—or as crooked. And, with sensible allowance for the temporary handicaps which motherhood imposes, she's as husky an animal as he is and as able to bear her share of work and responsibility.

MOST of the misery in life is due to the tradition of "mystery" about women. A man will stand dishonesty, cowardice, laziness, disloyalty and stupidity from a woman which he would not tolerate from a man for 10 seconds, because she's "different."

He cannot yet realize that there isn't a particle of difference between male and female cussedness—that they both have the same source and can be cured by the same methods.

And, usually, he doesn't want to realize it! Nothing tickles male egotism more than to think that the Dear Little Woman is less than the dust beneath his chariot wheels. And he'll stand any amount of abuse in order to maintain this pleasing delusion.

WHICH, NEVER FEAR, THE DEAR LITTLE WOMAN UNDERSTANDS PERFECTLY AND BANKS ON ACCORDINGLY!

5th Grade Girl Wins News Prize

To a fifth grade pupil in the James Garfield school in Brighton goes this week's top award of $5 in the weekly Tipster Contest of the Boston Record-Boston American-Boston Sunday Advertiser. It was she who first telephoned to the City Editor at Liberty 4000 the news of a gas leak which drove 350 pupils from the school and closed it.

At North Woodstock, N. H., a vivid story of a fire and a set of fire pictures were furnished on New Year's Day by a Lowell man, who receives $3 for his prompt service.

A gas main break drove six families from a building in Revere, and a Revere man was first to call Liberty 4000 with the news, enabling the papers to secure prompt pictures. He is awarded $2. And $2 also goes to an East Boston girl for her tip on the bursting of a gas main in Princeton st., with 11 persons overcome.

The crash of a truck into a lamppost on the Woburn-Winchester line was seen and promptly reported by a Woburn man, who wins $2 for being first with the news.

An Everett man wins $1 for his report of a man dropping dead in Glendale sq., Everett, and a Boston man wins the same amount for an account of a runaway horse at Dudley and Warren sts. A "freak" story of a hawk on City Hall ledge was reported by a Boston man, who wins $1, and a South Boston girl wins the same amount for a report of a crash between a truck and an automobile near her home.

The story of a rescue from drowning in the Charles river at Wellesley by a Wellesley Hills girl, of an impending truck strike by a Somerville man, and of the birth of a fine litter of pups to an Irish setter, sent in by a Watertown man, all rate $1 each.

Other winners of $1 awards were a Chelsea man, reporting a Chelsea fire in which six families were driven out; a Cambridge man, reporting a two-alarm fire in Kendall sq.; a Medford man, who told of a woman's leap from a bridge and her rescue by firemen, and a Boston man, reporting a two alarm fire in Newtonville.

It's easy to join this fascinating news contest. If you see or hear anything of news story or picture value be first to telephone the City Editor at Liberty 4000. Then watch this weekly column for awards.

A man connected with the music publishing business was telling us the other day that his business views with alarm the increasing manufacture of phonograph records with nice songs on one side and smutty ditties on the other.

As we gathered from his remarks no reputable manufacturer of records makes these discs. They are more or less bootleg propositions, but he said they were having a wide sale and a harmful influence, and that his business as a whole is going to do something about them.

We never happened to hear a phonograph record of the nature the man described. For that matter, we have never seen one of those smutty movie films that we understand are to be had for social gatherings of one kind and another if you know where to apply.

The market for smut in these United States must be considerable. Add the reputed trade in the records and films to the wide circulation of magazines that deal in cartoons of the old French post card variety, and the great success of several smutty stage shows in New York.

We hear a lot of beefs about the inanity of the radio, but it leans backwards keeping itself pure. It is almost as clean as the newspaper, which we insist remains about the only medium of thought and expression in this country uncontaminated by the tendency toward the off-color. Even the radio slips occasionally.

We have spoken of the matter of smut on the stage before, but it is not our intention to conduct a crusade about it.

Anyway, we are getting right crafty about crusades. We have discovered that if you must crusade, you can get just as noisy and be much safer crusading against dictators, bad roads and the inefficiency of the water supply, than if you make it a specific crusade that may have a bearing upon something closer to home.

Crime, if in a remote locality, is also all right for crusading.

We are inclined to think that our lack of the crusader zest may be traceable to a vague idea that crusading generally comes under the head of "hollering copper," or playing the role of stool pigeon.

We were trained in a school that taught that "hollering copper" was a major sin. Unfortunately, perhaps, for we might have made a great crusader. We know so well where iniquity hangs out.

If we were in the crusading racket we could think of a lot of things more deplorable than stage smut. That is after all just a minor offense against public decency.

But in the last analysis it is just a tiny reflection of a far greater and more alarming thing, which is the prodigious drift of civilization from God and his teachings, to which civilization must soon return else we are all lost.

The public presentation of themes dealing with adultery, obscenity and even perversion, is only a sign of the times. In a world of inordinate greed and self-seeking nations and individuals we think that it is comparatively insignificant save as it is another indication of how this era has lost touch with the old religion.

Birthday Ball Talent Plenty

Because of widespread interest in infantile paralysis prevention, the 1940 President's Birthday Ball will feature the greatest floor show in New England history, Chairman Peter F. Tague announced today.

The postmaster, appointed chairman by Mayor Tobin, revealed he had received hundreds of offers from theatrical screen and radio stars from all over the country to appear at the monster affair at Boston Garden Jan. 29.

Arrangements have already been made, he said, by the radio and screen committees for personal appearances of several nationally known radio and screen stars.

Cardinal Joins in Finn Relief Drive

In a letter to the Finnish Relief Fund in Massachusetts accompanied by a generous check, Cardinal O'Connell has consented to serve as a sponsor of the fund in this state.

"No single factor," said Chairman Harvey H. Bundy, "could contribute more to the success of the fund here for the Finnish refugees than His Eminence's sponsorship.

"Prominent Catholics throughout the world led by His Holiness, the Pope, have shown their active sympathy for the Finnish sufferers and I am confident that their example will be followed by most Americaps.

"No contribution is too small and none, of course, too large. Please remember that $1 will support the life of a child five days."

Funds for Finnish Relief are still being received by the Boston Evening American, Daily Record and Sunday Advertiser. Contributions may be sent to Finnish Relief Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Dog Without Food or Water 24 Days

LYNBROOK, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—Rusty, an airedale, lived 24 days without food or water.

Inadvertently locked in the one-room home of the late Arthur Erickson, a bachelor, when surrogate's representatives searched the place Dec. 13 for a will, it survived with the help of newspapers—for a mass of chewed fragments littered the floor when it was found.

A passer-by, Leslie Ott, peered through a window and saw the dog stretched on a bed, so weak it could not respond to a tap on the window.

Police broke in and found the dog had lost about 20 of its 30 pounds. They gave it drops of water; then milk; then mashed food, then breefsteak.

EARLY AMERICAN

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By PAULINE BLOOM

CELIA'S hand stole into Dan's pocket and curled up in his strong, hard grasp. It was the mirrors that were most frightening. They popped out at you from the unlikeliest places and jeered, "Go away! You don't belong here. You're all wrong. Go away."

The Cast of Characters in "Early American"

CELIA, who fairly bubbles over with joy at a completely furnished three-room apartment on display in a department store.

DAN, dubious about financial entanglements, but determined to please his bride-to-be.

The mirror over the fireplace was a sheer sweep to the top of the room. There, just to be different, it bent over at right angles to itself and bit out a chunk of the ceiling. Celia saw herself, a small pale face under a blue beret, in the lowest portion of the mirror, with a glistening expanse above her reflection that dwarfed it to nothingness. From the ceiling, like a frightened angel in a Victorian mural, peered another Celia, no, the same Celia from another angle.

She drew away her eyes, but they were caught and held from below, the top of the cocktail table. It gave her an unnatural view of her neck and chin with nothing much above. Even before her mind could fully grasp this curiosity she saw her head again, a dozen heads, twirling and whirling with each slight movement, like the quickly turned pages of the little movie books she had played with as a child. It was a mirrored cigarette box on top of the mirrored coffee table, fashioned of dozens of tiny mirrors, each placed at a different angle to catch the unsuspecting passerby and throw back his reflection a hundred times for his confusion.

Celia's hand stirred restlessly in Dan's. "Like it?" she asked.

"It's very stylish," he answered, his eyes still fixed on his defiant image in the ceiling mirror.

Celia was grateful for the reassuring response of his hand in the privacy of his pocket. Dan was not usually one for making a spectacle of himself by holding hands in a public place, and was there any place more public than the furnished apartment section of a huge department store? But he too seemed to need the comfort of Celia's soft, firm, little hand in his.

Instinctively they both turned to the framed celluloid protected price list in the doorway. They didn't bother with individual prices of individual items. Their eyes fastened themselves on the grand total and clung there. "Completely furnished three-room MODERNE apartment —$1[illegible]."

"We can pay so much down," Celia explained, "and the rest in instalments out of your income. But because these are expensive furnishings, the payments would probably run to $5 a week. That means if I stop working, we would have $27 a week left for everything else."

Dan's hand slipped out of his pocket. His shoulders weren't as square as when they had come in. A shipping clerk is a pretty tough guy when he throws around 100-pound bales of cotton goods or tells the expressmen where they come off. But $27 a week for "everything else" didn't seem very much to offer to the sweetest girl in the world. It made a guy feel like a "heel."

"Let's go into the other room and sit down," suggested Celia after an interval of gloomy silence.

THE ALTERNATIVE

"Or else," Celia hesitated for a moment, then the words came out, "Or else I could go on working—for a while." Celia hated her job under Miss Kilpatrick, a domineering, mean-tempered head bookkeeper. Dan knew it as well as he knew that he would hate to have her go on with her work. That would spoil everything.

"Let's go into the other room and sit down," suggested Celia after an interval of gloomy silence. "It looks nice and pleasant from here. Maybe we can figure something out." Celia wasn't a comptometer operator for nothing. She linked her arm through his and led him across the sea of furniture to the beckoning white doorway marked "EARLY AMERICAN."

To avoid the crowd they walked into the kitchen first. It was a faithful reproduction of a colonial room but so glistening white and cheery red and bright blue, so ingeniously convenient to Celia's practical eye, so alive with possibilities of happy living, that when Dan gently nudged her, she said "Wait a minute," her eyes caught and held by the gay plaid dishes in the cupboard. "Oh, Dan," she breathed, "I've got to have dishes just like that. I can't live without them."

"If you want them, you'll have them." Dan was on the defensive, for no reason at all he felt that he had done something for which he had to make it up to her. She must have the dishes no matter what they cost.

Against the admonition facing them from every wall Celia opened the cupboard, picked up the sugar bowl and turned it upside down. "I can't believe it," she turned wide brown eyes on Dan for confirmation. "This is $7.80 for the whole set. Why in the Moderne apartment everything was by the piece. The sugar bowl alone was $1.25. Oh, Dan, I just love these dishes."

"All right. I said you could have them, didn't I?" Celia knew he wasn't being surly. He was still feeling bruised from the impact of his pride of the MODEL MODERNE style of living.

THE IDEAL HOME

An influx of sightseers into the kitchen propelled them effectively into the bathroom. "Oh, Danny, it's adorable. It carries out the marine idea, do you see? All the decorations, the anchors and things." Celia slid an inquiring finger along the wall and turned a bright look of amazement on her husband-to-be. "Do you know what these are? They're decalcomanias! We called them cockamamies when we were kids. They cost about a dime a dozen and look what they do to this room! We've got to have them, Dan, do you hear me? We've simply got to have them."

"They're yours, kid. Let's see what else they got."

The bedroom was the dream of a thousand Celias come true. The curtains were made of crisp white organdie and each window had not one pair but two and white summer cloud piled over the other.

And the living room! "Oh, the darling little footstool." Celia saw herself sitting comfortably at Dan's feet. It was of a perfect height so that she could rest her head against his knees and listen while he read the newspaper to her. Dan was an irrepressible reader out-loud. There was a precious fireplace, too, with bookshelves on each side and a [illegible] woolly rug in front of it. Of course it burned electricity, not wood. But what difference did that make? It made a warm cheerful glow that filled the room with nostalgia though Celia had never seen it before.

But she was going to. Oh, yes, she was going to. For the whole apartment, including the loveseat in the foyer, came to $412.39.

"We can pay that easily in monthly installments and won't even miss it," Celia announced jubilantly.

"And you can tell your Miss Kilpatrick to go straight to —"

"Now Dan, none of that. Miss Kilpatrick is precious and unhappy because she hasn't got a —— a husband like you."

Celia's hand was back in Dan's pocket now and [illegible] calculations were proceeding apace. "We'll have at least $20 extra a week. Then we can save some money and add it to our account so that —— so that ——"

"Yeh!" For the moment at all Dan suddenly turned [illegible] red, but he managed. "It's always a good idea to save as much as you can just in case [illegible]."

"In case we ever need it," Celia finished for him.

"That's right," he accepted gratefully, "in case we ever need it."

Suddenly they looked at each other and laughed out loud, laughed with gusto and abandon and complete happiness. They laughed not because anything was funny, but because life was so good. Life was so wonderful it just got you by the throat sometimes and made you want to cry, so that you had to laugh.

They would have a kitchen, all white and red and blue. They would have a bathroom with ships sailing across the walls and anchors on the shower curtains. They would have a huge, snowy candlewick bedspread and storm lamps, and a sofa with a magazine rack on each side, and hooked rugs, and a loveseat in the foyer, and they could pay for it easily.

And there would be enough money coming in every week so that they could put some aside regularly to add to their little nest-egg, so that [illegible] in case [illegible]. Well, in case they ever needed it, they'd have it.

Tax Collectors Wear Disguises

With "bread and circus" budgets still in the making, governmental officials became adept at concealing who foots the bills. There is more subtlety in tax collections than in medieval times when kings without subterfuge sent tax collectors to gather their tithe from the barons.

IN THOSE DAYS, tax collectors were exceedingly unpopular, and would sometimes get killed. Now to an increasing extent government in this country is using business firms and corporations as indirect tax collectors.

They not only collect the miscellaneous excise, gasoline, tobacco and liquor taxes, but also tend to mark up the price of goods to provide for miscellaneous corporate and social security imposts.

But nowadays politicians confuse the issue by berating business concerns before the public not for matters relating to their function as tax collectors but for extraneous grievances, real and imagined, such as bigness, monopoly, price policy, or labor policy.

THUS UNDER the barrage of general attack the people are diverted and, if they resent business enterprises, it is not because they are onerous tax collectors, but for other reasons which the politicians exploit.

It's a giddy world in which productive enterprise provides the funds which politicians spend, and the institution which provides the financial sinews is sneered at and over-regulated.

A double standard of morality has developed.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT, for example, requires increasing uniform of propriety in corporate accounting, yet it feels free itself to pursue loose, archaic, and misleading accounting methods.

In view of the laxity in the fundamental financial reporting by the Federal government, it is doubtful whether the SEC could consistently register the securities of the central government if they were not already specifically exempted from regulation.

Price, leniency and prudence, if desirable in private life, ought to be equally cultivated in public affairs.

THE CITIZENS are entitled to an understandable box score of the receipts, expenditures, and efficiency of performance of government.

In order to make the Democratic process workable amidst the growing complexities, the voters need new intellectual tools for measuring the fidelity and efficiency of politicians.

They need simplified and streamlined figures concerning national affairs—better national, or social, bookkeeping, set up in intelligible double entry form.

Such figures would tend to increase respect for able and prudent public officials, and by the same token they would crucify eloquent and inconsistent bunglers, who, under the present system, can always find plausible words to explain why they are unable to make good on their promises.

THE CENTRAL statistical bureau at Washington had an opportunity to create such a master ledger of the wealth and income of the American people, but it muffed the chance.

However, Samuel Crowther and his associates pioneered with such an attempt for the Commonwealth of New Hampshire, and a similar study for Illinois is near completion. A tentative survey of this type was made for tax purposes in Indiana. Notre Dame University helped to perfect this technique in its study entitled, "A Study of the Physical Assets, Sometimes Called Wealth, of the United States (1922-1933)."

It is now supplementing this important work with a companion volume dealing with the simple realties behind the concept national income.

Stocks Drift Down When Buying Fades

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Leading stocks drifted to lower ground in today's market after early mild support faded.

With the ticker tape moving listlessly throughout, small fractional declines were widely distributed near mid-day.

Converting minor initial gains into losses were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Anaconda and Texas Corp. Slipping also were General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Western Union, Great Northern, Loft, Westinghouse, du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck.

Bonds were quiet and selectively higher. Commodoties were mixed and European securities market without definite trends.

Trading came almost to a standstill as boardrooms tuned in on Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech. While scant market stimulation was found in the address much interest was expressed in the official's warning that the present apparent war stalemate might mean the "calm before the storm."

Indications of some letdown in the economic upswing were seen in reports from the machine tool field that domestic purchasing here has declined substantially in the past few weeks. New orders for tools were understood to be running at about the same level as shipments with backlogs, rising since last September, now virtually stationary.

Aldrich Urges U. S. Put Gold in Circulation

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of Chase National Bank, recommended today the return of gold to free circulation in the United States.

"We are already," he told the bank's shareholders at their annual meeting, "the possessors of 60 per cent of the world's monetary gold stock. Before peace can be achieved this share may have risen further.

"In a large sense we are and will be the conservators of the world's monetary system.

"It is for this reason, as well as for ample reasons of our own, that we must take action now to preserve the monetary character of gold. As I see it, our immediate function is to reestablish a free gold market permitting free movement of gold bars and gold currency both inward and outward, so that the price of gold as here established shall continue a firm and certain base line from which the values of the diverse currencies of the world can be confidently figured."

Aldrich asserted that, with more than five billion dollars of excess reserves, the nation's banks were hard pressed to loan out their money.

Armour Earnings Step Up Sharply

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (AP)—Armour & Co. reported today for the fiscal year ended Oct. 28, 1939, consolidated net earnings of $7,912,097, compared with a loss of $1,505,399 in the previous year.

The consolidated net earnings, which were slightly less than annual requirements for preferred dividends, consisted of a profit of $7,706,630 earned by Armour & Co. of Delaware and its subsidiaries, and a loss of $394,573 sustained by the parent company, Armour & Co. (Illinois) and its subsidiaries exclusive of Armour & Co. of Delaware.

$57,668,620 Jump In Gold Imports

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Gold imports increased again last week as Canada, the major gold shipper since the war, resumed that role.

The week's imports totaled $57,668,620, of which $22,769,727 came from Canada. The previous week's total was $18,174,791.

The total of unmarked gold increased during the week by $14,374,409, and now totals about $1,152,436,965.

Masonite Net Rises

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (AP) The Masonite Corporation reported today for the 16 weeks ended Dec. 23, 1939, net profit of $141,969, equal after preferred dividend requirements to 77 cents a share on the common. This compared with $219,512, or 35 cents on common for corresponding 1938 period.

National City Earnings Jump

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Net earnings of the National City Bank, after provision for taxes and depreciation, were $17,642,169.32, including $6,978,524.77 of profits from the sale of bonds which were transferred to reserves. This compares with earnings for 1938 of $10,047,750.49, including $2,856,889.72 of profits from the sale of bonds which were transferred to reserves.

Thus exclusive of profits on bond sales 1939 net earnings were $10,663,644.45, compared with $7,690,860.77 for 1938. Net earnings for the year do not include recoveries, of which $3,000,000 were taken into undivided profits for transfer to surplus and the balance carried into reserve.

From the year's earnings, dividends of $6,200,000 were paid or set aside for payment and $1,463,644.55 was carried to undivided profits.

Surplus was increased $6,000,000 during the year by transfer from undivided profits and at the year-end stood at $7,500,000.

After these transfers undivided profits at the year-end stood at $15,013,584.23 and were larger than a year ago by $1,463,644.55.

RECOVERY SHOWN BY STEEL MILLS

NEW YORK Jan. 9 (AP)—Steel mills in America will operate at 86.1 per cent of capacity this week the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

This compared with 85.7 per cent in the preceding week and further broadens the recovery from Christmas lull of 73.7 per cent of capacity.

A month ago output was at 91.2 per cent and a year ago at 51.7 per cent.

S. H. KRESS SALES SHOW GAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—S. H. Kress Co. reported today December sales of $15,232,484, a gain of 3.6 per cent from $14,428,795 in December, 1938.

Total 1939 sales amounted to $84,851,573, or 3.2 per cent more than $82,187,173 in the preceding year.

HELP BACK AT PLANT

WEST PARIS, Me., Jan. 9—Eighty men and women were back at work today in this town's principal industry following a two months' shutdown caused by fire in Penley Brothers clothespin factory. Damage of more than $50,000 was caused in a blaze on Nov. 5.

U.S. DEBT PASSES 42 BILLION MARK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Treasury disclosed today that the public debt passed $42,000,000,000 on Jan. 6, coming within $3,000,000,000 of the statutory limit.

President Roosevelt advised Congress last week that further debt increases would be necessary because of deficits next year, but said then that if Congress voted $460,000,000 of additional taxes to pay for emergency national defense costs, the debt would not reach $45,000,000,000 in the next fiscal year. With the new taxes, he said, the estimated debt on June 30, 1941, would be $44,935,577,922.

Since the current fiscal year began on July 1 the debt has increased $1,562,048,037, because of borrowing to finance most of the $2,115,711,637 deficit incurred in the same period. The rest of the deficit was paid out of cash on hand at the beginning of the year. Since July 1 expenditures have totaled $4,943,439,139 and receipts $2,827,727,501.

A year ago the debt was $39,502,543,964, and the deficit for the corresponding portion of the previous fiscal year was $1,736,145,913.

The President also estimated that the final deficit this fiscal year would be $4,152,613,241 but if Congress votes the new taxes the deficit next year would be pared to $1,716,221,709.

Uruguay, U. S. Pact Collapses

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (INS)—The United States has terminated its trade agreement negotiations with Uruguay, the State Department has announced.

Closing of the negotiations followed by four days a State Department announcement that this government's parallel negotiations with Argentina for a reciprocal trade agreement, had collapsed.

Breakdown of the Uruguayan conversations had been reliably forecast since the disclosed failure of efforts to conclude an agreement with Argentina. Major export products of the two Latin American republics are similar, and proposals within the two projected agreements were nearly identical.

Official circles discerned in administration efforts to wage new attacks upon the already embattled reciprocal trade agreements program, subject of an impending Congressional struggle.

Earlier today the United States and Argentina in government, through a joint statement declared the treaty had been abandoned because of Argentina's refusal to accept American import quotas on canned beef, linseed and other products.

GENERAL MOTORS SALES INCREASE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (INS) Sales of General Motors cars and trucks last year totaled 1,542,776, compared with 1,104,097 in 1938, it was announced today. The totals were for the United States and Canada, and included export shipments.

Sales last month totalled 207,637, against 200,071 in November, and 172,069 in December, 1938.

AUSTEN LAKE

It Seems a Little Sad: Diz Gets His Contract

THE TIMES LACK LOGIC! Here is Art Ross, the bench Hamlet of the Bruins, asking his league to smack a $1000 plaster on Connie Smythe, the little Charley McCarthy imp of the Toronto Maple Leafs, for advertising Art's hockey firm. And here are the mutt manipulators suing somebody for libel. And here is Arturio Godoy, a Class B button biffer, getting ready to sniff Joe Louis's ether in Mike Jacobs' New York chump trap. And there is Dizzy Dean, the Cubs' pixilated pitcher with the arthritic elbow, quibbling over a $10,000 salary. It must be the sun spots!

AUSTEN LAKE

Last month when I talked with Gabby Hartnett, Dean's body boss, he said, "When Diz comes to sign his next contract there'll not only be a joker in it but a whole minstrel show."

It is even so! What Mrs. Patricia Dean's husband got the other day was not so much a baseball contract as a cross between a marriage service and a legal deed calling for $10,000, plus a sliding scale of bonuses which depended not only on the number of games he would win in 1940 but the degree of his obedience to Manager Gabe, his submission to club authority, his abstinence from newspaper interviews and his general decorum and dignity in word and deed.

When Diz received it he fizzed like a seltzer. But, like seltzer too, he'll finally settle and sign. Patricia, the mental half of the Dean menage, will see to that.

Paul Is Still Loyal

IT'S A LITTLE SAD. For three years ago Diz was not merely asking, he was demanding $50,000 from the Cardinals on a basis that he was worth at least one-tenth of the $500,000 price-tag Branch Rickey placed on his services. Last year he was glad to get $20,000. This year he will sign for ten G's and next year, if the ache in his hinge still lingers, he may be back with brother Paul in baseball's weeds. It's sad! For "Me 'n' Paul" were baseball's greatest pitching team. Yet almost simultaneously their arms went wobbly and Paul next spring will be on trial with the Giants while Diz is on trial with the Cubs.

Last year, briefly, Paul came back to the Cardinals. He didn't last. But he came to Boston in the early spring—the self-effacing half of the eccentric brother act. As I talked to him it was clear that four years of separation had not lessened his small boy adoration for his elder brother.

"What about Diz now?" I asked him. "Ah think he's a great dam man," he said a little aggressively. He stopped a forkful of bacon near his mouth and looked searchingly for any signs of doubt. "He's an asset to any ball club. He's got everything—color, brains an' stuff."

Paul's regard for his blustering elder has always amounted to a fixation. Long before each grew a muscle-twinge in his pitching shoulder, which sent Paul back to the chitlin's and hominy belt and Diz to more appreciative fields in Chicago, they had been as Substance and Shadow: Paul always at his elder's elbow, ready to feed Diz's ego with an answering laugh or an inevitable, "An' that's Gawd's hones' truth, Diz—you said 'er."

Diz Was Changed Last Fall

LAST AUTUMN AFTER DIZZY'S MYSTERIOUS injury in his hotel room—he said he cut his hand on a glass table top while reaching for the telephone! Remember?—Dizzy made his last appearance in Boston. He was a changed man. He said he was satisfied with his job, had no notion of quitting baseball, only wanted a chance to be a club's ball player. It was a speech of noble generalities premised on letting the dead past bury its dead while he lifted his chin to greet the roseate glow of a new life.

As he sat spanking his fist into his glove he edited every little word as it passed through his teeth. When he mentioned the Cubs' manager he didn't say "Gabby" as formerly, but "Mr. Hartnett." He talked in a spirit of quiet humility, as one who repents past impieties. Gone, at least temporarily, was the rich and vivid language, his pictorial cussing, his game cock strut, the threats and braggings. Dizzy was dead. Long live Jerome. Yes it is a little sad!

It was a drastic change from his attitude of a month previous when I had called at the Surf Hotel in Chicago and asked to see his gashed forearm. Dizzy had wanted to hide in an inner recess. But Mrs. Dean sang a coloratura "Come up" into the telephone, and I came.

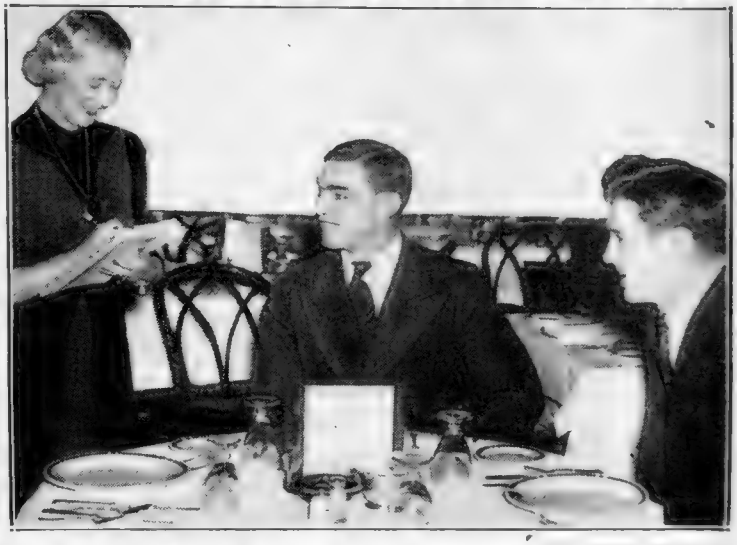
Diz, a length of surgical bandage below his shirt sleeve, glowered like a grumpy bear. "Fer two cents I'd quit baseball for good," growled the Man who had once styled himself as one of the seven great pitchers in history. "I'm tired of bein' the goat. I took it in St. Louis an' I ain't . . ."

"You're tired dear," cooed Mrs. Dean sweetly, arranging her auburn hair before a gold-rimmed mirror. "Tired me neck," snorted Diz, rising abruptly and disappearing into the family bathroom. A sound of running water was followed by some husky gargling and a final explosive "Phoole!"

Like a querulous child Diz threatened to quit baseball in one breath and pled his willingness to pitch in another—alternating between scowling storms and April tears with Mrs. Dean the only sunshine on his horizon. So the situation, as in past years when it was Dean vs. Frisch and Dean vs. Frick, then was Dean vs. Hartnett, with the future of both men at stake.

Hartnett was sore! He had said so! Which is why now he has offered Dizzy a contract which doesn't only contain a "joker" but a "whole minstrel show." It seems a little sad! . . . . . .

WINGS LOSE THOMPSON FOR GAME WITH BRUINS



Boston Evening American Photo

"AND PLENTY OF BUTTER." Joe Fisher and Ken Kilrea, Detroit Red Wings, order breakfast from lovely Florence Lovett at Hotel Manger. The youngsters, both Canadians, might be overseas in another year, so they'll eat while they have the chance. Smilin' Joe could pass for movie actor, couldn't he?

By BILL GRIMES

Winding up a four-game home stay, the Bruins will meet the Detroit Red Wings tonight at the Boston Garden, and if they come through with a victory they'll again be on even terms with the Rangers, pacing the N. H. L. In all probability there will be a triple tie for the top for the Maple Leafs, who are now tied with the Bruins for second place and playing the Amerks in New York and should win with ease.

Since returning from the road ten days ago the Bruins have beaten Les Canadiens and Americans but were flattened by the Rangers, who give every indication of being the greatest of all time N. H. L. clubs by going through 17 games without a defeat.

FAIL TO IMPRESS

Although they came through with a one-sided win, the Bruins were not impressive against Americans on Sunday night. Due to the return of Mel Hill, who was out of competition for more than three weeks, Coach Cooney Weiland was obliged to revamp the Cowley line and that trio didn't even start to click.

Coach Weiland looks for a better showing tonight but he realizes that his charges will be pitted against stiffer opposition from the Red Wings who, although they haven't been consistent, are a stronger club than is indicated by their tie for sixth place with the Amerks.

WINGS ARE YOUNG

Manager Jack Adams is piloting a very young club this season. So due to lack of experience, the Red Wings have made many costly

B. C. Sextet Duels Huskies at Arena

AL DUMOND BOB MEE

"COME ONE, COME ALL." It's not Rhoderick Dhu speaking. Just a coupe of B. C. hockey players, tho face Northeastern tonight in N. E. Conference game at Arena. Dumond is a left wing, Mee right defense.

Boston College and Northeastern hockey teams battle tonight at the Arena to reduce the three-way tie for the top rung of the New England Intercollegiate Hockey League. The rivals are locked with Boston University.

In five games, three of which were played against the cream of intercollegiate hockey, (Princeton Dartmouth and McGill) Boston College has posted but two victories. The "cream" handed out the defeats—but don't get the impression that John Kelley is coaching a weak sextet.

B. C. NEEDS GOALIE

Though Princeton, Dartmouth and McGill took the Heightsmen over the hurdles Boston College is still considered a strong ice unit.

A first line of Ray Chaisson, Al Dumond and Johnny Prior, plus Bob Mee and Johnny Buckley on defense are the equal of any puck chasers in college ranks. But if Boston College had a more experienced goaler and a half dozen capable spares for those named above it would be unbeatable.

As it is, the Eagle sextet even in defeat has been coming along, and though the second line will have to work minus Ralph Dougherty, out with a bruised hip, Coach Kelley expects to see improvement in his "spares" tonight.

Northeastern, considered a slight underdog, promises to be anything but a soft touch for the Kelley A. C. Coach Herb Gallagher, the screwed young gent who is handling Husky ice fortunes, feels that he has something this semester.

HAS SHOWN CLASS

The work of the uptowners in their opener against New Hampshire, in which they led 4-1 most of the way although the final score saw Northeastern victorious by but 4-3, backs up Gallagher's optimism.

With a first line of Ed Barry, Johnny Chipman and Ed McCarthy, and a powerful veteran defense of Capt. Gerry Griffin and Russ Cuningham, Northeastern is ready for anything the flying Eagles have to offer.

Tiny Thompson Out of Action

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Cecil (Tiny) Thompson, star goalie of the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, returned to Detroit today for treatment of a strained back while his club went to Boston to play the Bruins tonight.

Thompson has been suffering from the strain for about two weeks. He reported it had become worse after Sunday night's game with the Rangers and decided to go home for rest and treatment.

His place in the nets will be filled by Alfie Moore, veteran minor league player who has made numerous emergency appearances in the National League.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

HENRY CHMIELEWSKI has been rated ninth in the list of the world's ten leading middleweights compiled by the National Boxing Association . . . Chmielewski has won 13 out of 14 bouts since coming to the United States from Poland . . . Lou Brouillard, former world's welterweight and middleweight champion, is the only boxer to win a duke over the "Polish Machine Gun" in this country.

Henry and Lou had a furious battle in Worcester early last Summer . . . Chmielewski had Brouillard on the canvas in the early rounds, but Lou came on to win the decision in a furious finish . . . Chmielewski and Brouillard will punch it out again at Mechanics Building in Worcester on Friday night.

Jack Kearns stepped into New York and took the Bob Pastor-Red Burman bout from under the nose of Mike Jacobs . . . Kearns will stage the contest at the Olympia in Detroit . . . Kearns didn't have any difficulty coming to terms with Jimmy Johnston, Pastor's manager, and soon closed with Jack Dempsey and Max Waxman, who control the destinies of Burman . . . Dempsey and Kearns will cut in on the profits of the Dempsey-Willard films that are now being shown. The films were outlawed for 20 years by a federal law aimed against the transportation of fight films.

Joey Archibald of Providence, world's featherweight champion, will receive a guarantee of $10,000 for defending his title against Jimmy Perrin in New Orleans for Lou Raymond . . . Perrin is the latest pride of the South and it is expected that he will draw $30,000 with Archibald as his opponent . . . New Orleans gave boxing Pete Herman and Tony Canzoneri, both champions . . . It now looks to Perrin as its standard bearer . . . It was in New Orleans that John L. Sullivan lost his world's championship to Jim Corbett . . . At a time when Sullivan was past his fistic peak . . . Sullivan at his best, the old timers tell me, would have knocked out Corbett or any other heavyweight.

When John L. was champion the big press services of the country carried daily stories about everything he did and said . . . The people liked the colorful "Boston Strong Boy" . . . Dempsey has come nearest of any other champion to approaching Sullivan's high degree of popularity.

Dave Wilson's New Code Booklet

"DAVE WILSON'S WINNERS," new code book by the king of handicappers that will be placed on sale next Monday, is sure to receive a splendid reception from race and sports fans . . . Win With Wilson! . . . Whether it is at one of the New England tracks, in Maryland or in Florida it is always Wilson who is leading the parade of handicappers . . . Dave is going to continue his regular handicapping feature in the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, while his new code book will be an additional feature. . . . The booklet will contain a list of "Wake-Up" horses, race track news and gossip, and a code . . . The code will enable you to get the special list of five horses that Wilson will have in the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser . . . The price of "Dave Wilson's Winners" will be 15 cents, and the booklet will be good for a week.

"I am all ready to go with my new code book," writes Wilson from Tropical Park . . . "The horsemen here are anxious that my book prove an instant success, and they are helping me get some 'live' horses . . . I have my special clockers on the job at Tropical Park, at the early morning workouts at Hialeah Park that opens on Wednesday, at Fair Grounds, Santa Anita and at Oriental Park at Havana . . . They will wire me the last-minute information on horses that should win at a price."

Wilson has been sensational at the Tropical Park meeting . . . Last Saturday he came up with five winners which included Cardinalis at $31 . . . Tell your newsdealer to save you a copy of "Dave Wilson's Winners" . . . It will be on sale in Boston and throughout New England next Monday, Jan. 15.

Steve Casey Would Beat Joe Louis

I HAVE RECEIVED a letter from members of the Coast Guard in which I am asked to give my opinion as to what would happen if Steve Casey and Joe Louis were to meet . . . In a bout under the rules of boxing, Louis would win, but in a mixed contest in which the contestants could either box or wrestle it would be an easy victory for Casey . . . Once a first class wrestler gets to close quarters and gets his hands on a boxer he doesn't have much trouble winning.

When the wrestler is able to get the boxer off his feet, it is not long before the ring man is out of the picture . . . Casey is in town to wrestle Rebel Bob Russell in a finish bout at the Arena tomorrow night . . . Marvin Westenberg and Yvon Robert clash in a bout on the same card . . . Eddie Quinn, Montreal promoter, would like to arrange a mixed bout between Robert and Al McCoy, boxer.

Dr. William F. Maguire of Randolph calls my attention to the monster athletic night that will be held for St. Mary's parish, Randolph, tomorrow night . . . Joe Rubin will be master of ceremonies, while Dot Slamin will be on hand with the Graham Bell Post, A. L., band . . . The list of headliners includes Jack Sharkey, Lou Brouillard, Tony Shucco, George Martin, Abe Denner, Dick Finnegan, Frank Leahy, Pat Hanley, Cleo O'Donnell, Tuss McLaughry, Elbie Fletcher, Hugh Mulcahy, Jack Onslow, Lefty Gomez, Bump Hadley, Hago Harrington, Bill Cleary, "Tarzan" Brown, William "Fat" Stewart of Randolph and a flock of sports writers and radio commentators . . . It looks as if Dr. Maguire is going to town in a big way once more.

Roslindale Vet Lauds Silver Skates Derby

By OLYMPIAN

As entries continue to pour in from all over New England for the great Silver Skates Derby under the combined auspices of the Boston American-Record-Advertiser in the Boston Garden on Feb. 4th, the youngest entrant to date is six year old Carl Blackman of Wilmington.

The oldest entrant yet to mail in his signed entry blank is Herbert A. Lyon, 59 years young, of 3 Ardale st., Roslindale.

LAUDS AMERICAN

With his entry Lyon sends a letter in which he says:

"I may be old in years but I am young in spirit. I am in splendid physical condition owing to my indulgence in outdoor exercise. I have been a contestant in the Silver Skates Carnivals since 1937."

Lyon has a sense of humor, for he adds, "If I keep at it long enough I surely will win."

In closing his letter Lyon says:

"The Hearst papers in Boston are to be congratulated for holding these gigantic annual ice carnivals, which now have become the sports feature of the winter season. They not only bring together the cream of the champions from far and near in record wrecking races for most valuable and coveted prizes, but they encourage the beginner an dyoungster. The Silver Skates Carnival is the nursery for future Olympic and world's champions."

Little six-year-old Carl Blackman, who is the apple of his fond Wilmington Pa's eye, has entered the Midgets race, which is open to those who are 12 years of age on the day of the race. Most of the boys in the Midgets race will be from 8 to 11, so perhaps the committee will give little 6-year-old Carl a head start.

The first twins to enter the carnival are Tracy and Edson Evans of 305 Lincoln avenue, Saugus. The 13-year-lod twins have entered the race for Juveniles, which is open to boys who have not reached their fourteenth birthday.

RYDER WILL AID

Tomorrow the American will give some valuable training tips from Jack Ryder, famous trainer of Boston College and the Boston A. A., who has conditioned thousands of noted athletes, and has made champions galore. Among the entries are:

Milton Greenglass, 21 Nazing st., Roxbury; Joe Palino, 48 Hampden st., Roxbury; Arthur Golding, 509 Main st., Watertown; Jerry Malins, 289 Tappan st., Brookline; Donald Weagle, 172 Chestnut st., Cambridge; Charles Brown, 176 Frospect st., Cambridge; John McInnis, 36 Lambert st., Roxbury; Donald Madden, 21 Desmond rd., Malden; Richard Walls, 17 Dennis st., Roxbury; Tony Colauraae, 145 Cottegas st.; Norman King, Olympic Club; Bud Kelly, 3 Marion st., Roslindale.

George Sheppard, Grove st., Wilmington; Samuel Stone, 24 Lorne st., Dorchester; Stephen Monaghan, 307 Bowdoin st., Winthrop; John J. Levine, Jr., 15 Tainter st. Medford; Tony Fisher, 43 McLean st., Boston; Briggs Wadsworth, 350 Chestnut Hill ave., Brighton; Glen Coleman, 10 Fruit st., Worcester; Arthur J. Riendeau, 122 Laurel st., Fitchburg; Melvin Alman, 56 Harvard st., Malden; John Stevenson, 84 Eustis st., Roxbury.

Tordiglione Wins by K. O.

Eight more amateur boxing stars vaulted into the State championships by victories at the Arena last night in the second series of eliminations for the Massachusetts ring finals.

It was a night of fine fighting, marked by 14 knockouts. A crowd of 1500, which paid a gross of $884 and a net of $635, sat in on the show, directed by the Irish American A. A.

Bill Tordiglione, one of the standout amateurs in this section, won his way into the finals with a knockout triumph. He stopped Charlie Samara in the first round and boosted his chances of winning a State crown.

Best bout on the card in the eyes of many was the 160-pound final between George Pixiev and Thomas Hill, who slugged it out from the first bell. Pixiev stopped Hill in the second, rallying brilliantly. He was on the way out himself before he put across the hay-makers.

Final bouts results:

112—Orlando Fanti, Lynn, kayoed Tommy Luckman, Dorchester, second round.

118—Vincent Doyle, Boston, knocked out Jackie Brogan, Cambridge, first round.

126—Harold Harris, Malden, defeated Charlie Driscoll, South Boston, three rounds, decision.

135—Orlando Cioffi, East Boston, defeated George Sherman, Dorchester, three rounds, decision.

147—Bill Tordiglione, Boston, kayoed Charles Samara, Woburn, first round.

160—George Pixiev, Springfield, kayoed Thomas Hill, Lowell, second round.

175—John Pretzie, Boston, kayoed Walter Strow, Wilmington, first round.

Heavyweight—Bill Weinberg, Chelsea, kayoed Joseph Peters, Waltham, first round.

EVELYN'S DARING AS STUNT SKATER PARALYZES FANS

A little girl from Brooklyn who made good!

Evelyn Chandler, world's professional women's figure skating champion, stars in "Ice Follies of 1940" which opens at Boston Garden next Monday night for a run of 7 days and 9 performances, including matinees on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 20 and 21.

Miss Chandler is an exceptionally strong skater, whose skill, speed and daring leave her audiences spellbound as they watch her perform on the ice.

Few male skaters would attempt, nor could execute, the amazing series of feats she does with abandon which makes them look comparatively simple to perform. She is truly the "Queen of the Ice" with none to challenge her claim to that title.

Lovely Evelyn is constantly planning and inventing new tricks in her art. One of Miss Chandler's spectacular stunts is the "Axel Paulsen," named for the ice marvel who invented it. It is a revolution and a half in the air, done several times in succession. Another is the "Arabian Cartwheel," a cartwheel done without touching the hands on the ice. No other skater has ever attempted this stunt.

"It's strenuous work while it lasts but I love it," the "Queen of the Ice" laughs.

Her partner, Bruce Mapes, is also a noted figure skater and one of the world's best known performers In 1934 Mapes won the Middle Atlantic championships for figure skating and his repertoire of difficult numbers, while not of the daring variety of Miss Chandler, is perfectly executed.

Others starring in this new and marvelous musical revue on ice are: Bess Ehrhardt, Roy Shipstad, Eddie Shipstad and Oscar Johnson, Heinie Brock, Papez and Zwack, Frances Claudet, Harris Legg, Less Hamilton, Frick and Frack, Osborne Colson, Ruby and Bobby Maxson, McKellen Brothers, and a score of others, with 24 ice queens, the best drilled group of girls on ice.

NORTH OF BORDER. Vivacious Evelyn Chandler appears in cowboy costume which she wears becomingly in one of her numbers in "Ice Follies," which open next Monday at Garden for seven-day run.

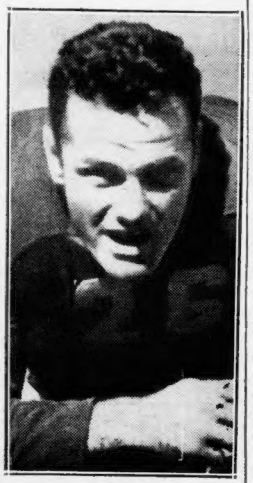
HENY TOCZYLOWSKI



JACK KELLAR

RIVAL CAPTAINS. Might as well show them now as next fall. Above, Henry Toczylowski, B. C. captain-elect for '40 H. C. game. He's from Lynn. Below: Jack Kellar, H. C. captain-elect, from Pittsfield. Henry's a quarterback, Kellar a tackle.

EAGLES' HIGHEST FOOTBALL HONOR GIVEN TO 'TOCZY'

Henry "The Hammer" Toczylowski, who, when a junior in Lynn Classical high school was too small to make the football team, will captain the Boston College eleven in its traditional game with Holy Cross next fall.

In a history making election, 34 Boston College lettermen decided to have a captain for each game next fall but singularly honored Toczylowski, rugged blocking quarterback, with the Holy Cross game captaincy.

Thomas McDonald, '41 was elected student manager.

THIRTEEN ELIGIBLE

With Toczylowski elected as leader for the important Holy Cross game, the remaining 13 juniors, who won letters, now remain eligible for single game captaincies.

The 13 include: George Kerr, Gene Goodreault, Joe Manzo, Johnny Yauckoes, Chet Gladchuk and Charlie O'Rourke, all regulars on last season's eleven, and Joe Zabilski, Dave White, Lou Montgomery, Frank Galvani, Walt Dubzinski, Ed Cownig and Alex Lukachik ranking substitutes.

Upon the assumption that all of these men retain their ranking status, and show enough to warrant a remaining captaincy, Boston College may have co-leaders in some of its games next fall.

The election met the approval of all at the Heights.

Head Coach Frank Leahy admitted himself "very much pleased with the new plan." Regarding Toczylowski, Coach Leahy said "He's a fine boy, a great quarterback, and as good an all around player as there is in intercollegiate ranks today."

PLAYED AT ST. JOHN'S

Rev. Patrick H. Collins, faculty director of athletics, said, "The presence of so many candidates warranted the departure from a traditional election. The choice of Tocyzlowski, as captain for the Holy Cross game, is a splendid reward for the boy's eminent quarterback leadership of the past season. The others have always had complete confidence in Henry."

Toczylowski, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Toczylowski, is the youngest of four children, three boys and one girl. The family resides at 18 Houghton st. in Lynn. After attending Lynn Classical, "Tocz," as he is known at the Heights, went to St. John's Prep for one year. At both Classical and St. John's, Toczylowski played quarterback and was considered a triple threat back. Since coming to Boston College he has been used mainly as a blocking back.

mistakes this season but they are tough to beat when they click.

"We've certainly taken it on the chin this season," admitted Manager Jack Adams today, "but we are beginning to come along and will make those play offs with points to spare.

"Although I still claim that the Wings should have met the Bruins in the Stanley Cup finals last spring, I realize that our veterans were shot at the end of the 1938-'39 season. So during the summer, the Norrises agreed with me that I should gather a young club, and build for the future. It's tough to be consistent losers in N. H. L. but I've discovered that it isn't half as painful to blow verdicts with a young club as it is with a crowd of spavined veterans.

IF I HAD SCHMIDT!

"After a good start, we were hit by injuries and skidded right down the N. H. L. ladder to the bottom rung. We blew our chances of staying up in the race when we lost Eddie Ware and Don Grosso.

"I've a fine bunch of kids under my wing and they are learning fast. Youngsters like Kenny Kilrea, Connie Brown, Jack Stewart, Joe Fisher, Gus Geisebrecht and "Butch" MacDonald are exceptionally promising.

"In all seriousness, I'll say that if I had Milt Schmidt of your Kraut line, I wouldn't be afraid to battle Bruins, Rangers and Toronto right through the season, and I'd gamble that Ross, Patrick and Smythe would have a tough time beating me.

"Although we lost to the Bruins on our last visit here, I was perfectly satisfied with the type of hockey we played. I've a much stronger club with me on this trip, and I take it that the Bruins, with Roy Conacher out of the lineup and Mel Hill, just back, will not be as good."

Kern Quits At Carnegie

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 9 (AP)—Bill Kern, for two years head coach of the Carnegie Tech football team, resigned.

Both Kern and Clarence (Buddy) Overend, manager of athletics at Carnegie, confirmed the resignation but neither would say what prompted Kern to leave his post at Tech.

The resignation was no surprise. It had been rumored here and in Morgantown, W. Va., for weeks that Kern would be named head coach of West Virginia University succeeding Marshall (Sleepy) Glenn, resigned.

West Virginia officials have insisted that Glenn's successor would not be named until a still unscheduled meeting of the university board of governors.

ZAMPERINI CUNNINGHAM FENSKE RIDEOUT

CHAMPION. Blaine Rideout showing way to Chuck Fenske, Louis Zamperini and Glenn Cunningham in national 1500 meter championship at Lincoln, Neb. last summer. Blaine will race against both Fenske and Cunningham in mile event at Garden next Saturday night.

Winner of Sugar Bowl Mile To Run for Vets in Garden

The Veterans of Foreign Wars staged their first annual track meet at the 101st Infantry Armory last winter as an anti-climax to the Garden season, and although they had Glenn Cunningham and other headliners, the locale as well as the lateness of the season, militated against their chances of success.

But you can't fool the Vets twice. This year they're setting the pace from the gun, and the fields they will present at the Garden Saturday night in their second annual affair hardly could be improved upon.

Look over this list:

Mile—Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Romani and the Rideout twins, Blaine and Wayne.

Two-mile—Don Lash, Gregory Rice, Joe McCluskey.

880-yard run—Charlie Beetham, Campbell Kane.

This is only Tuesday, and efforts to fill out the other events with headliners are proceeding smoothly, according to John Lane, chairman of the VFW games committee. Luigi Beccali, 1932 Olympic champion at 1500 meters, is in the U. S., and he is being sought to round out the mile field.

John Borican and Long John Woodruff are half-mile possibilities, but whether they will appear here remains problematical. At any rate Doug Raymond and other local topnotchers are available if the colored boys should not compete.

Today's major entries were received from Archie San Romani, the Rideout twins, and Campbell Kane.

San Romani claims he is in his best condition in three years. He went far toward proving it in the Sugar Bowl when he defeated Cunningham.

Blaine Rideout was the central figure in the famous Princeton Mile controversy last spring in which he was accused of "shoulder ing" Stanley Wooderson of Britain, who finished last in the race. Chuck Fenske won that race, you may remember.

Blaine later won the national 1500 - meter championship from Fenske, Louis Zamperini and Glenn Cunningham in 3:51 as the above photo proves, so you can see he has few superiors.

Campbell Kaue is the latest half-mile sensation from Indiana, that famous track incubator which produced Don Lash, Tommy Deckard, Ivan Fuqua, Chuck Hornbostel.

Kane won the recent 800 meters in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans in 1:54 and figures he will be at the peak of condition come Saturday.

He needs must be to take the scalp of Charlie Beetham, who won the national 800 meters last July in 1:51.7 and last winter won the national 600 meter title in New York.

And don't forget Lightnin' Lou Montgomery in the dash.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Al Nettlow, tough little scrapper from Detroit, and Paul Junior, veteran Lewiston, Me., campaigner, fought a blistering draw in the eight-round feature of a boxing program at St. Nicholas Palace.

Rebel Bob Tests 'Crusher' Casey On Arena Mat

With the world's championship at stake in one match, and two former champions meeting in another, Promoter Paul Bowser will present his weekly wrestling tournament tomorrow night at the Boston Arena.

The program is headlined by co-main bouts, in one of which Steve Casey defends his crowd against Rebel Rob Russell. The other will have Marvin Westenberg, former Shadow, clashing with Yvon Robert in what looks like the hottest grudge battle in years.

Casey, with his usual confident air, thinks he can take care of Russell in short order, but local fans are not so sure it will be a blitzkrieg.

standard bearer . . . Michigan and New York and Ohio, the eyes of thir corner are on you! . . . (That oughtta get 'em) . . . So here's a platter of politics today. Politics are—or is—suddenly in the air again, in spite of an absolutely nonpartisan war overseas.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY is about another newspaperman, the grand old Boston veteran reporter, Charles Howard, who critics the drayma for a sheet down the street apace . . . Jack Granara, the Keith's press agent, was visiting with Charlie when the sage of the Boston theater district dusted off the nameplate on his desk . . . The inscription proved that the desk—a mammoth rolltop—was the gift of General Charles H. Taylor in the year 1894 . . . But you'd never guess the occasion of the presentation, or what event it memorialized . . . The desk was presented Critic-Editor Howard in token of his winning of the championship of the Boston Press Rifle Association . . . The boys in the newspaper business in those days must have believed in preparedness . . . There were annual shoots, and, we are told, a great deal of front page publicity was accorded these annual tournaments in order that the public would realize that the calibre of marksmanship was high . . . There may be an idea there. (Particularly when we are discussing politics)

ATTY.-GEN. PAUL A. DEVER has this corner's gratitude for his speech at the Jackson Dinner in which he virtually declared his candidacy for the governorship . . . In yesterday's column we were saying that Paul would need to show a little haste to beat former Lieut.-Gov. Kelly to the announcement . . . The column and the speech were in no way related. It was just one of those nice, handy happenings . . . Now wouldn't it be strange if the former lieutenant governor didn't oblige with an announcement, as predicted . . . We think we are safe.

AS FORETOLD HERE last week, Councilor Michael J. Ward (in collaboration with his neighboring councilor, Maurice Sullivan, who also hails from Brighton) introduced an order in the City Council calling for appropriation of part of the White Fund for the building of a Municipal Stadium . . . With enough fast action, the stadium could be inaugurated—possibly—with the Boston College—Texas Aggies' game of next October 5 . . . The word reaches the city that that brawl is not at all a positive uncertainty . . . Add Clarence Barnes to the list of Republican candidates for attorney general. (Bill Crossley, the Bristol County district attorney, will be disappointed) . . . Clarence carried the ball for his party last election. He told friends at a private party for Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire that he (Mr. Barnes) would run again this year . . . Exclusive: Governor Saltonstall's secretary, Carroll Meins, will accept an appointment in the Board of Tax Appeals (coming up in April) if he doesn't change his mind.

Ray Lapham Succeeds Father As Garden Head

Raymond W. Lapham, of Brookline, who was elected president of the Boston Garden to succeed his father, the late Henry G. Lapham, is a graduate of Yale, 1928 and played on the hockey, football and baseball teams there. Ray Lapham is 36 years old and is president of the Lapham-Brown Oil Co.

Ray Lapham

He has an intense interest in sports, as did his father, and expects to work closely with the directors and officers of Garden and of Arena, that the policy of both New England sports institutions may continue to develop and promote the best in sports entertainment for the New England public.

Young Lapham is a member of The Country Club, and an officer of the Commonwealth Figure Skating Club. He is also expected to assume a directorship in the Boys Club of Boston, held formerly by his father. He is the owner of one of the world's greatest stamp collections and is a member of the Massachusetts Model Railway Society.

Members of the Board of Directors present at the election were: Walter A. Brown, Joseph F. Conway, Edward S. French, Sheldon Fairbanks, William F. Garcelon, Charles S. Keene, Huntington R. Hardwick, Charles A. Malley, E. Ray Speare, Robert S. Weeks, Laurance F. Whittemore, Arthur C. Wise and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr.

Walter A. Brown is the son of the late Walter A. Brown who was associated with young Lapham's father.
